SOCIALISTS MAY HAVE HOT FIGHT ON PROHIBITION

MINNESOTA DELEGATION IS PLEDGED TO ATTEMPT

BATTLE ROYAL MAY RESULT

MICHIGAN AND NORTH DAKOTA
PLEDGE HELP

IMMIGRATION IS MOOTED

Unrestricted, or Slightly Restricted,
Immigration Affords Another
Big Puzzle

CHICAGO, May 9.—For the first time in the history of the socialist party in the United States there is to be an attempt made to place the national organization on record as favoring prohibition. Incidentally, there is promised a lively fight on the floor of the convention Monday as a result.

The Minnesota state delegation which arrived today comes instructed to work for the adoption in the platform of a prohibition plank. They have already received assurances of support from the delegations from Michigan and North Dakota. This means that there is a real sentiment in the party against the liquor traffic, and the proceedings on Monday will be watched with great interest. While it is conceded that there is no possibility of a strong prohibition plank being incorporated in the platform, there is a feeling that something may be accomplished along that line, possibly favoring a modified temperance plank.

All through today state delegations have been arriving and indications are that this will be a record breaker in point of attendance. There will be 218 delegates and the same number of alternates, and every state is sending in addition delegates to aid in enlisting the leaders.

The new national committee as finally chosen is: J. Mahlon Barnes, Philadelphia, national secretary; Victor Berger, Milwaukee; A. M. Simmons, Chicago; Morris Hilquit, New York; John M. Work, Iowa; A. H. Floaten, Colorado; Carl D. Thompson, Wisconsin; J. G. Phelps Stokes, New York. The committee will meet for organization and election of a national chairman immediately after the convention adjourns Tuesday. The sentiment at present is for Stokes, whose wife, Rose Pastor Stokes, is a leading figure in the convention.

Because of the likelihood that Taft is to be one of the candidates for president, the convention proper will devote much time to a discussion of the injunction problem. There will also be a lively discussion of the restriction of immigration. The plank adopted at the international conference at Stuttgart which pledges the organization as a whole to unrestricted immigration will be thoroughly thrashed out, as will the resolution favored by the old executive committee which advocates slight restrictions.

Preliminary to the assembly of the convention tomorrow there will be a mass meeting at the Garrick theatre, to be addressed by Eugene V. Debs and others. The delegates will then march to Brand's hall, where the convention will be called to order.

MEXICO IS NOT ASSEMBLING TROOPS

MEXICO CITY, Mex., May 9.—No attention has been paid here to reports that Guatemala has requested the United States to inquire of Mexico whether troops are being massed along the Guatemalan boundary. It is not believed such a note has been sent to Washington. Reports from Central American capitals show the belief prevails that Guatemala has herself been taken to task by the United States and this view is held here. Official denial that Mexico is assembling troops has been made.

ROUND UP BAND OF NOTE FORGERS

NEW YORK, May 9.—John Joseph Campbell, formerly a member of J. D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s bible class, has made a confession by which District Attorney Jerome expects to round up a band of alleged note forgers who have put a great amount of worthless paper afloat in the financial district lately. Many of the notes were given in payment for diamonds or other property purchased and were used as collateral for loans. It is said Campbell's confession involves a dozen men who are now being sought by the police.

Banks of Ohio River Being Patrolled by Troops and Invasion by Kentucky Growers Threatened

MANCHESTER, O., May 9.—Troop A of Cleveland is today patrolling the Ohio side of the Ohio river to prevent an invasion by night riders.

The feeling against the sending of troops to the Ohio tobacco fields is very bitter and Sheriff Paul fears violence. Col. Knox, Capt. Darnell and other officers on the streets are cautioning people against loud talk and threats. Kentuckians are even more excited and are making threats to invade Ohio territory and repeat "Morgan's raid." In circulars which have been spread broadcast along the river references are made to ante-bellum feelings that caused unrest here.

Farmers back from the river are in a panic. Many think the county is in a state of siege, and refuse to leave their homes for fear of being shot.

GOVERNORSHIP OF MISSOURI SEIZED

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 9.—If the plot to wrest the governorship of Arkansas from the hands of X. O. Pindall is successful, Allen H. Hamiter, the power of the assembly, will be installed as governor today according to Hamiter's friends, who are here.

The change will be made as soon as Hamiter and his friends receive a message which was filed here today, saying that Governor Pindall is out of Arkansas. Pindall is now enroute to Washington to attend the conference called by Roosevelt.

Hamiter will proclaim himself acting governor and will refuse to abdicate when Pindall returns from Washington. Hamiter is speaker of the house and Pindall is serving as governor because he was speaker pro tem of the senate when Governor Little was incapacitated.

Many lawyers claim Hamiter should be governor instead of Pindall and the plot to wrest the governorship has been brewing for months.

BRYAN MEN HOLD RUMP CONVENTION

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 9.—The regular Ramsey county democratic county convention today endorsed Gov. Johnson for the presidency and elected 66 delegates to the state convention, instructing them to vote for delegates to the national convention favoring Johnson. The Bryan wing of the party held a "rump" convention endorsing Bryan and directing delegates at the state convention to vote for delegates to the national body who favor Bryan. This means contesting delegations at the state convention.

EVERY DAY MOTHERS' DAY

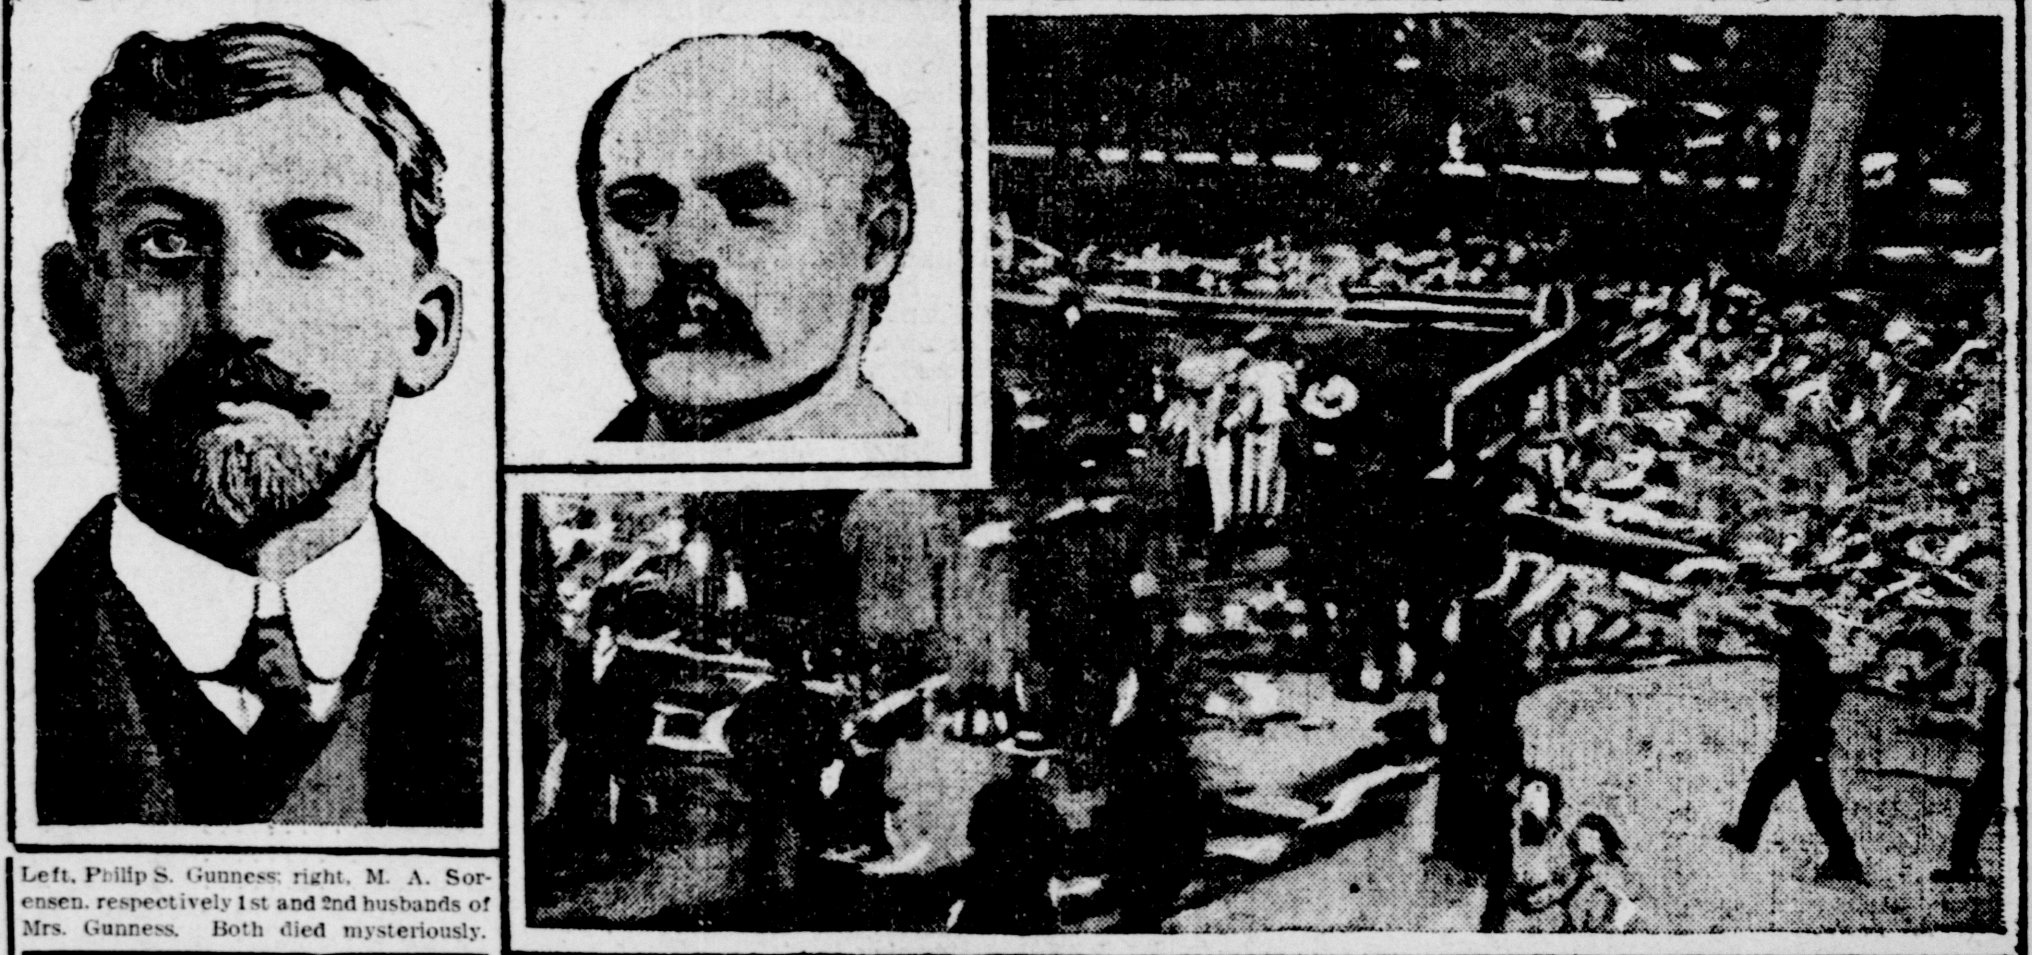

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The senate today by a vote of 33 to 14 referred to the judiciary committee the Burkett resolution which provides that tomorrow, May 10th, be celebrated as "Mothers' Day," and that every member, officer and employee of the senate should wear a white flower in honor of the occasion.

Senator Keen had moved to substitute the fifth commandment, "honor thy father and thy mother." Teller said he would rather vote for the fifth commandment than the other suggestion. Burkett said he had offered the resolution at the request of Y. M. C. A. workers. Gillingham said he did not have to wear a white flower to remind him of his mother. Teller declared every day was "Mothers' Day" for him.

DISQUIETING INDIAN NEWS.

LONDON, May 9.—Disquieting news received from India indicates there is imminent danger of another Afghan outbreak on the northern frontier. Reports from the south of further exhibitions of uneasiness among the natives have caused renewed fears of an uprising against the British. Today's unfavorable news from India had a noticeable depressive effect upon the markets. Consols suffered a distinct drop on this account.

WILL FIGHT HARD ON VREELAND BILL

INSURGENTS EXPECT TO KILL
CURRENCY MEASURE

NEED 30 REPUBLICAN VOTES

Already Have Twenty-five Pledged,
Which Is Only Five Short of Required Number

WASHINGTON, May 9.—With the third republican currency conference only three days away, the band of tried and true "insurgents" who are opposed to the ideas and principles and everything else of the Vreeland bill, are working day and night to block its passage. One member of this group of experts said today that there were about twenty-five republicans in the house who have already signified to the insurgent camp their readiness to leave the fold and come over to the opponents of the Vreeland bill. If thirty members should be persuaded to bolt the program which it was believed had been practically settled at the last conference, the Vreeland bill could not be forced through in spite of Speaker Cannon and the other leaders. The democrats are all against the bill and with the number indicated it could not pass.

BETTER PAY TO START IN JULY

Sergeant Robert Shaw, of the local recruiting office, has received the announcement from the headquarters at St. Paul stating that the law providing an increase in the pay of the army recruits about 35 per cent will go into effect the first of July. The law will greatly help the local recruiting office and Sergeant Shaw looks for a great increase in the number of recruits enlisted at the local office.

H. A. Sharp, a former member of Dana's band, has been enlisted and will leave Monday for St. Paul. From there he will go to Fort Harris, Mont., in the 66th infantry band. Louis Harget will also be sent to St. Paul Monday from the local office and serve in the infantry.

ICE BREAKER RAMMED.

QUEBEC, Can., May 9.—As a result of a collision with the steamer Milwaukee of the Canadian Pacific railway, the government ice-breaker Montcalm, the finest vessel of the fleet, is beached and almost submerged in Sackville Harbor today. The Milwaukee was bound for Montreal and rammed the Montcalm as the latter tried to cross her bows in the St. Lawrence river. The Montcalm was valued at half a million.

SENSATIONAL RESCUE.

SANDY HOOK, May 9.—Another sensational breeches buoy rescue was made today when the captain and 36 men of the tank steamer Washenaw, stranded on Monmouth beach, were safely landed. The position of the steamer is not dangerous and it is believed she will be floated at high tide. The vessel went ashore in a gale last night.

$100 TO PROVE DONEHOWER DEATH

DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF TREM-
PEALEAU TO PROBE MYSTERY

BOARD APPROPRIATES MONEY

Reed Brothers Have Been Under Suspicion but Facts Will be Looked Into at Once

WHITEHALL, Wis., May 9.—(Special.) The county board of supervisors has voted that the sum of $100 be appropriated for the purpose of investigating the death of Elan Donehower, who disappeared last winter after a fight with Will Reed, a river guide, and whose body was found this spring below the city with its neck broken.

District Attorney Ensel has already begun the probe, but when approached today declined to say what progress he was making. The young men who had the altercation with Donehower have borne a good reputation, and feeling in their home town in most instances is that their names should not have been associated with the affair.

EVANS TO BE ACTIVE; VICE ADMIRAL, MAYBE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—Although he will soon go on the retired list it is probable Admiral Evans will serve out his life as one of the actual working heads of the navy department. Secretary Metcalf has announced that upon his return to Washington he expects to take immediate steps looking to the appointment for Evans to special duty in the navy department in Washington, and that he will use his best efforts to have the veteran advanced to the rank of vice admiral.

NO WONDER THIS MAN'S A BURGLAR

JUST LISTEN TO HIS NAME; JAR-
ISLAVE PROCHASKA

IS CHARGED WITH ROBBERIES

Women in Court Identify Prisoner as Man Who Entered Their Homes in Various Sections

everyone thinks it would be a benefit to the public peace and temper to have this man's name in jail anyway. Listen to his name: Karoslave Prochaska. He's the fellow who has been held at the police station for several days charged with burglarizing several residences in various parts of the city.

He was brought before Judge Brindley this morning and a number of women whose homes were entered identified the man as the same man who had been in their houses. Where identification was impossible, articles found in his pockets were further evidence connecting him with a large number of robberies.

Prochaska's method was to enter a house in the daylight, taking a chance on the people being engaged or out, and if he was detected he would pretend to be half witted and a mute, thus throwing off suspicion. He claims to come from the east and denies the robberies.

The hearing was set for May 20th.

49 BIRTHS AND 32 DEATHS IN APRIL

The number of marriages filed with the health officer during the month of April numbered 19.

Officer Murphy has called attention to the fact that regarding to marriages performed outside of the state, section 1022-52, laws of 1907, when parties living in this state shall go out of it to be married and shall return to it to reside they shall obtain from the county clerk of the county in which either of them resided prior to their marriage a blank certificate of marriage, which they shall cause to be filled out and filed with the local register of vital statistics of the city or town wherein they reside within 10 days after their return.

SYRACUSE SUSPECT NOT MRS. GUNNESS

WOMAN TAKEN FROM BERTH IN SLEEPER IDENTIFIED

IS MRS. BELLE HERRON

Claims Chicago as Home but Franklin Dispatch Says She is Prominent Franklin Woman

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 9.—After questioning a woman who was arrested here suspected of being Mrs. Belle Guinness, the LaPorte arch-murderess, Chief of Police Martin Condit today said:

"I think a mistake has been made by my subordinates." It is now believed the woman is Mrs. F. B. Herron of Chicago, as she says. It is expected she and her mother will soon be released. Mrs. Herron doesn't fully agree with the description received here from the Chicago police as that of Mrs. Guinness. Mrs. Herron weighs only 130 pounds, while Mrs. Guinness weighs 200. The woman produced cards and receipts showing her name to be as claimed. The reticence of herself and her mother and their refusal to answer questions when first approached now is attributed to the suddenness of the charge against them, and to the shock of being dragged from their berth in a train to face the accusation.

Lives at Franklin

FRANKLIN, Pa., May 9.—Mrs. F. B. Herron, who was arrested at Syracuse, N. Y., on suspicion of being Mrs. Belle Guinness, lives in the country about eight miles from here, with her mother, Mrs. Lucy Burton. Both are well known here. Her husband died in the south last winter, and Mrs. Herron brought the body here for burial.

BAPTISTS SLAIN BY ORTHODOX CHURCH

ST. PETERSBURG, May 9.—Two women were killed and fifty men and women injured in an attempted massacre of Baptists planned by a priest of the orthodox church in Novokhopor district of Veronezh province today. The Baptists were invited to a conference for the feigned purpose of discussing doctrinal differences. When they arrived they found the members of the orthodox church armed with axes, knives, scythes and other implements. The local priest gave the signal and led the onslaught. The Baptists were unarmed and were unable to resist. They were pursued to their homes and the angry religionists continued their attack, killing all the stock they could find, and destroying the crops. Utter destitution and great suffering prevails among the victims.

Work in Yard at Guinness Farm Continues—Evidence is Piling Up
Every Hour

LA PORTE, Ind., May 9.—After a careful scientific examination of the body now held by the coroner and generally believed to be that of Mrs. Belle Guinness, Dr. Harry H. Long of La Porte, who had known the woman in life, today stated unqualifiedly that the burned corpse was not that of the mistress of the La Porte "House of Horrors." Dr. Long says the finger nails of the dead woman were carefully manicured, something with which Mrs. Guinness was not familiar.

"The body at the morgue is that of a rather plump woman weighing about 160 pounds. Mrs. Guinness was literally a succession of billows of flesh, weighing 325 pounds or more," he said.

"The arm of the body at the morgue is well formed and rounded, but Mrs. Guinness's arms were not. The body is almost five inches shorter than the body of Mrs. Guinness would be under the same circumstances. The body at the morgue is that of a recent victim. It is not that of Mrs. Guinness. I am sure of that."

She Had an Accomplish.
It developed today through evidence of persons here looking for clues to missing relatives that Mrs. Guinness must have been in league with some one at Aberdeen, S. D., for the purpose of misleading relatives as to the whereabouts of her victims. This is indicated by James Beard and John Mason, of Mishawaka, Ind., who are certain Bert Chase of that town was one of the victims. Sometime ago Chase sold his butcher shop at Mishawaka for a good sum and left town, telling friends he was in correspondence with a "wealthy widow who owned a fine farm in Indiana," and he was going to look her up. A short time afterwards his brother, Fred Chase, received a telegram from Aberdeen informing him his brother had been killed in a freight wreck. Chase went to Aberdeen, but found the name signed to the message was fictitious, and that no wreck had occurred in that locality for months. When the mysteries of the "House of Horrors" at La Porte became known and it was

BABY'S EYESIGHT WAS THREATENED

By Terrible Eczema—Head Became a Mass of Itching Rash and Sores—Would Scratch Till Blood Came—Much Money Wasted in Fruitless Treatments—Disease Was Soon

CURED AT SLIGHT COST BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Our little girl was two months old when she got a rash on her face and within five days her face and head were all one sore. We used different remedies but it got worse instead of better and we thought she would turn blind and that her ears would fall off. She suffered terribly, and would scratch until the blood came. At night we had to pin her hands down. This went on until she was five months old, then I had her under our family doctor's care, but she continued to grow worse. He said it was eczema. When she was seven months old I started to use Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent, and in three weeks—what a change! I kept using the Cuticura Remedies for two months and our baby was a different girl. You could not see a sign of a sore and she was as fair as a new-born baby, and all for the small cost of a dollar and seventy-five cents where we had spent ten times the money for doctoring. She is now two years old and has not had a sign of the eczema since. Mrs. H. F. Budke, R. F. D. 4, LeSueur, Minn., Apr. 15 and May 2, 1907."

SLEEP KILLED

By an Itching Humor. Another Cure by Cuticura Remedies.

"I broke out with a humor which spread almost all over my body. The itching would get worse on retiring, so I could not sleep. I tried several remedies but it grew worse until I got some Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Pills which began to relieve me at once. By the time I had used one vial of the Pills, the humor was entirely gone. I wish every sufferer could secure the Cuticura Remedies. Travis Bates, Hamburg, Ark., April 26, 1907."

The second game of the series with Fond du Lac was a walkaway for the home team yesterday, resulting in a score of 11 to 3. The La Crosse boys by far outclassed the visiting team in both team work and batting. DuChien, Heppel and Bues are making good and doing splendid fielding and batting. La Crosse ran in one score in the first inning and another in the second, but the visitors ran in two in the second, tying the score. In the last of the second Becker bunted but was put out on first and Tracy followed him with another, stealing second, when the second baseman failed to handle it. Love reached first on a short hit, which brought Tracy home. Harms walked and Jones got to first base on a hot grounder. Graves batted a nice one out into the field, but it was captured by Schaub. Lynch opened the third inning by reaching first on a single, and McDonald's was caught out by Left Fielder Heppel. Watson took his base on balls, and Schaub soaked the ball for a two bagger, bringing in Lynch and advancing Watson to third base. Zackert failed to get to first on a bunt.

DuChien and "Dutch" Get Double.
DuChien netted a two bagger, and Bues received the ball in the arm taking his base. Heppel bunted and failed to reach first, and Becker batted the ball for two bags, bringing in DuChien and Bues. Tracy got to first and Becker was put out on third. Love fanned. Vogt, the Fond du Lac second baseman, netted a two base hit and Burgoise was put out on first. Coons and Hartig both struck out. Harms batted the ball into right field and it was caught by Zackert. Jones reached first on a fumble by "Dutchy" Vogt and Graves batted for a short hit, but was called out on first. Jones was caught out on second in a cleverly worked double play. Lynch, McDonald and Watson made connections with the ball in the fifth but failed to reach first. In the sixth Schaub netted a safe single and Zackert followed with a strike out. Vogt and Burgoise were both put out on first. La Crosse struck a batting streak in the last of the sixth, and it looked for a while as if Coons would have to take the bench. Tracy reached first on a safe bunt and Love followed with four balls. Harms also bunted and filled the bases. It was now up to Jones to bring a couple of scores, but he only danded a short hit which was captured at second base. Graves, however, did the stunt and brought in Tracy, and DuChien followed with another safe one which brought in Love. Bues made a good sacrifice hit, bringing in Harms, after which Heppel was put out on first. Coons started the seventh by being put out on first. Hartig failed to make connection with the ball and Lynch landed a single, but tried to steal second and was called out. La Crosse did no scoring in the last of the seventh, although two men reached second. In the eighth Jones allowed McDonald to walk and Watson fanned out. Schaub reached first on a hot grounder and Zackert was caught out by Heppel. Burgoise batted one into Bues' hands where it was safe.

Another Batfist.
The La Crosse boys were caught by another batting fever in the eighth. Harms made connections but was caught out by McDonald. Jones struck out and Graves walked. DuChien landed a safe hit and Bues slugged for two bags bringing DuChien in. Heppel also netted a two base hit enabling Bues to reach home, and Becker hit the ball in the face for another two bags and Heppel trotted in another score. Tracy batted into the right field and was caught out by Zackert. Fond du Lac did no scoring in the ninth, and the game closed with a score of 11 to 3 in favor of the home team.

KANSAS CITY LIKES THE MOTORCYCLE

Kansas City is rather hilly for bicycle riders, though the present year has shown a notable increase in the number of wheels used there. But hills do not bother the motorcycle to any great extent, and that type of machine has leaped into great popularity in the city of bluffs.

A motorcycle pleasure club of one hundred members has already been formed, and it is claimed that there are not less than one hundred and twenty-five other motorcycles in daily use.

Chief Ahern, of Kansas City, has been advocating the formation of a police motorcycle squad for a long time, but he was thwarted last season by opposition in the ranks of the councilmen. This year the chief will probably win out.

NEW GIANT FOR MICHIGAN ELEVEN

DETROIT, Mich., May 9.—Reports from Ann Arbor are to the effect that Edmunds, a freshman medical student from Youngstown, O., who won his "R" last fall, is creating a sensation at full back in the spring football practice. The man had never played the game before coming to Michigan and showed up splendidly when out with the '07 squad. He is built like a herculean, weighing well toward 200 pounds, and covers the ground as lightly as any man in the squad.

SHOWING UP JEROME.

William Travers Jerome, that eminent exponent of political vaudeville, is having the sham that is in him shown up in the Kings county hearing in a way that is getting somewhat under even his notoriously thick skin. It is excellent news.

When Jerome failed to prosecute the New York traction crowd for grafting of the worst kind, so discernible as to be common talk at the time, it was the occasion for much complaint against him. However, the matter drifted, Jerome explaining that while he believed a crime had been done, he could not secure the evidence, and it became the accepted conclusion that he was guilty of nothing worse than bad judgment, or a weak nerve.

Now, however, it is being shown that he was on familiar terms with the sons of the leader of that notorious robbery, Thomas E. Ryan—gambled and drank with them—and that his chosen assistant is related to the next important figure in the traction grab, A. N. Brady.

These are but little things. More might be discovered if the trial court were to make Jerome's refusal to bring into court for examination the minutes of the grand jury meeting which had the traction matter under consideration, the basis of a sentence for contempt. Perhaps, were he faced with the assurance that obstinacy meant prison walls, the prosecutor would produce those books. Perhaps he would not. It all depends upon whether there is in the minutes evidence likely to result in more serious punishment for dereliction of duty than is a mere commitment for contempt.

Worthy indeed of republication is the following homily, signed "Herbert Kaufman," which appeared in the Chicago Tribune of yesterday: "You men whose bodies died in their youth. And who set up windows, and tablets, and shafts to their memory, can do something bigger and finer. You can build living monuments—you can help some boy to the 'up-way' and do it in the name of that 'other' whom now you can only know when you sit at the loom of recollection and weave heart-aching pictures of the 'what-might-have-been.' If he was the right sort of a boy (that brother of yours) he would have preferred to have somebody glad that he came for 'a little while' than to have an elaborate memorial which can benefit no one. It would have pleased him more if you picked out some deserving chap whose poverty and responsibilities cut him off from mental and ethical, and physical strengthening, and gave him a part of the chance which would have been his lot. If there is any way by which he knows what is happening since he went on the 'long journey' he'd be glad if his influence is working for somebody's betterment. The Y. M. C. A. is trying to build a 'helping hand' so big that it can take hold of all the young men reaching out for uplift. But it needs more funds. Can't the memory of 'somebody' send your hand toward the check book."

SCHOOL DISCIPLINE.

"Poetry," by two demure—let us say—school girls, has become the subject of litigation reviewed by the state supreme court. Here is the justly celebrated gem:

"You must shut your mouth at noon-time,
You must shut it at recess;
You must keep it shut all morning,
And all other times, I guess.

"When you get up to leave the room,
Don't take a friend along;
You must not once quit working hard
Because you know that's wrong.

"Can't even stop to tie your shoes,
To blow your nose, or cough;
Don't look up from your books at all
And don't you dare to laugh.

"Just camly wait till four o'clock,
You know that comes 'round soon;
And then you're free from prison,
Until the next forenoon."

Because they did not like the school discipline the girl authors of the above caused it to be published in a paper in St. Croix Falls, where they reside. They were expelled, and in seeking to compel their reinstatement their father fought the matter to the highest tribunal in the state. The court upheld the school authorities. It did not pass upon the question of whether the seditious poetry was really common sense ground for expulsion, but held that, even though it was written outside of school, if in their discretionary powers the school authorities regarded it as injurious to discipline, they did not exceed their authority in expelling those responsible for it. There is a strong probability that the expulsion of the pupils in the St. Croix case was more drastic treatment than the case required, and it even seems to suggest hostility to them on the part of the commissioners which may be akin to personal spite, but the supreme court was laying down a general rule for the maintenance of school discipline, and the position the jurists assumed was essential to the preservation of law and order in our public schools.

It is to be hoped that the project to secure a public landing for the North side may be taken with due seriousness. There are as many launches in that harbor now as there are in all this city three or four years ago. Investors in these splendid little pleasure boats that are making a good name for La Crosse should have every encouragement and convenience within reason.

The Mill street crossing has again demonstrated its unusual possibilities for disaster, and the fates are indeed kind that in still another instance what might easily have been a fatal accident was avoided as by a miracle.

It is apparent that the "do nothing" congress proposes to do something when it comes to the "pork barrel" appropriations bill.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Strong Minded Lover.

Nobody had ever accused Nathan Harlowe of indulging in romance or sentiment. When it came to a question of young Jared Parker's marrying one of Mr. Harlowe's daughters, the practical father was amazed to find how little influence his wisdom had.

"Got his mind all set on 'Phemie,' Mr. Harlowe remarked, in a dazed tone, to one of his neighbors, 'and I couldn't turn him no more'n I could turn an injine! I put it to him plain and offered him inducements, but 'twas n't a mite o' use.

"Marthy's the oldest and ought to be married first, by rights," I said to him; 'and more'n that, she's a suitable height. You'd oughtn't to take a little short piece like 'Phemie, tall as you are!' But I couldn't convince him.

"I'm going to have 'Phemie and that mahogany bureau she's told me about," he says, laughing.
"Sakes alive, man," I said to him. 'There's two bureaus goes with Marthy, and maybe three! But he just laughed and shook his head. So then I gave up contending with him once and for all. There's no reason to him.'—Youth's Companion.

Matter of Proof.

A Scotchman went to London for a holiday. Walking along one of the streets, he noticed a bald headed chemist at his shop door, and inquired if he had any hair restorer.
"Yes, sir," said the chemist. "Step inside, please. There's an article I can highly recommend. Testimonials from great men who have used it. It makes the hair grow in twenty-four hours."

"Aweel," said the Scot, "ye can gie the top o' your head a bit rub wit' it, and I'll look back the morn, and see if ye're tellin' the truth."—Wind-sor Magazine.

KING LEOPOLD AND THE STORK

KING LEOPOLD

King Leopold of Belgium, by custom, stands godfather to every seventh son of any of his subjects. He has this week accepted the position of godfather to twins of a Belgium laborer's wife, near Liege, who already had six sons. It was difficult to ascertain just which one of the twins was entitled to be considered the seventh son and therefore Leopold stood sponsor for them both. He ordered the mayor of Brussels to represent him at the christening and to hand the father $30.

FASHION HINTS

By MAY MANTON

5986 Child's Princess Petticoat, 2, 4 and 6 years.

Under garments that are simple and the weight of which is supported by the shoulders are always desirable for the little folk. Illustrated is a petticoat that fulfills these requirements and which is entirely satisfactory while it can be made from nainsook, lawn, batiste or any material that is used for children's underwear. In this case the trimming is embroidered but a frill of the material trimmed with lace could be substituted and lace banding and lace edging could be used if something a little more dainty is wanted. The petticoat is prettily tucked and without unnecessary fullness yet is wide enough to provide free movement.

The garment consists of front and backs and is fitted by means of shoulder and under-arm seams. The frill is gathered and pointed to its lower edge and the neck edge is finished with a shaped band.

The quantity of material required for the medium size (4 years) is 1 1/4 yards 36 inches wide, 2 3/4 yards of insertion, 2 1/4 yards of wide embroidery, 2 1/2 yards of edging.

The pattern 5986 is cut in sizes for girls of 2, 4 and 6 years of age, and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. If in haste send additional two-cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.)

The Essential

At a Mid-Sussex elementary school the teacher closed some pregnant remarks on the effect of sunshine on the ripening corn, with the question: "And now can anyone tell me what is the most necessary thing for the harvest, the thing that the farmer pays for, the thing that the laborer must have if his work is not to be valueless? Thomas Buddington, you raised your hand first. It is for you to tell the class what, of course, they already know. Speak, Thomas." "Beer," said Thomas.—London Globe.

THE PAUPER OF PARK LANE

By William Le Queux
"I wish, Miss Rolfe, that I could impress upon you the extreme importance of this matter to myself personally," he said, assuming an air quite conciliatory in the hope that he might induce her to reveal the truth. "I have begged of you to assist me in a very difficult task—one which, if I fail in accomplishing, will mean an enormous financial reverse. Your brother is in my service, while you yourself are also indirectly in my service," he added; "and if, as a result of your information, I am able to discover the Doctor, I need not tell you that I shall mark your services in an appreciable manner."

"You have already been very generous to us both, Mr. Statham, but I think you cannot know much of me if you believe that for sake of reward I will betray the Doctor," was her dignified answer.

"It is not a question of betrayal," he hastened to reassure her. "It is to his own interest as well as to mine that we should meet. If we do not, it will mean ruin to him."

"And if he is dead?" suggested Marion.

"My own belief is that he is not dead," was the millionaire's reply. "I know more of him and of his past than you imagine. There is every reason why he should live."

"And Maud—what of her?"

He shrugged his shoulders, and replied: "As regards her—you know best. She told you the truth."

"Yes—and which I will not repeat."

"Oh! but, by dear young lady, you must! Why waste time like this?"

Every day, say every hour, causes the affair to assume increased gravity. "I would have gone to the police long ago, only such a course would have brought the Doctor into a criminal dock. I have his interests, as well as my own heart."

"I have given my promise of secrecy, Mr. Statham, and I will not betray it," she repeated, again rising from her chair, anxious to leave the house.

"You still refuse!" he cried starting to his feet also, and standing before her. "You still refuse—even to save yourself!"

"To save myself!" she exclaimed. "I do not follow you, Mr. Statham."

A sinister grin spread over his grey face.

"You are perfectly free to leave this place, Miss Rolfe," he said in a hard, meaning voice, "but first reflect what they will say at Cunningham's regarding your visit here tonight!"

"You—you will tell them!" she gasped, drawing back from him, pale as death as she realized, for the first time, how she had imperiled her good name, and how completely she was in his power. "I—I believed, Mr. Statham, that you were an honorable man!"

"Where a man's life is concerned it is not a question of honour," was his reply. "You refuse to assist me—and I refuse to assist you. That's all!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

"His Name!"

"Not a question of honour, Mr. Statham!" she cried. "Is it not a question of my own honour!" and she stood before him, erect and defiant.

"My dear young lady," he laughed, "pray calm yourself. Let us discuss this matter quietly."

"There is nothing to discuss," she exclaimed resentfully, looking straight into the old man's grey face. "You have threatened to divulge the secret of my visit to you tonight if I refuse to betray my friend!"

Is such an action honourable? Does such a threat against a defenceless woman do you credit?" she asked.

"You misunderstand me," he hastened to assure her, realizing the mistake he had made.

"I understand that you ask me a question," she said. "You wish me to repeat what was told to me in confidence—the secret imparted to me by the girl who was my best friend!"

"Yes; I wish to know what Maud Petrovitch told you," he answered, standing with his thin hands behind his back.

"Then I regret that I am unable to satisfy your curiosity," was her firm response. "I now realize your motive in inviting me here at this hour to see you in secret."

You meant me to compromise myself—to remain away from Cunningham's and be punished for my absence—the punishment of dismissal," she went on, her fine eyes flashing in anger at his dastardly tactics. "You know quite well, Mr. Statham, that the world is only too ready to think ill of a woman! You anticipate that I will betray my friend, in order to save myself from calumny and dismissal from the service of the firm. But in that you are mistaken. No word shall pass my lips, and I wish you good-night," she added with severe hauteur, moving towards the door.

"No, Miss Rolfe!" he cried, quickly intercepting her. "Surely it is unnecessary to create this scene. I hate scenes. Life is really not worth them."

You have denounced what you pleased to call my ungentlemanly tactics. Well, I can only say in my defense that Samuel Statham, although he is not all that he might be, has never acted the blackguard towards a woman, and more especially towards the daughter of his dear friend."

"You have told me that you will refuse to assist me further!" she said. "In other words, you decline to preserve the secret of my visit here, although you made a promise that my absence tonight from Cunningham's should not be noted!"

"I have given you a promise, Miss Rolfe, and I shall keep it," was his quiet and serious response.

She looked at him with distrust.

"You have asked me a question, Mr. Statham—one to which I am not permitted to reply," she said.

"Why not?"
"Because—well, because I have made a vow to regard what was told me as strictly in confidence."

Sam Statham pursed his lips. Few were the secrets he could not learn when he set his mind upon learning them. In every capital in Europe he had his agents, who, at orders from him, set about to discover what he wished to know, whether it be a carefully guarded diplomatic secret, or whether it concerned the love affair of some royal prince to whom he was making a loan. He knew as much of the internal affairs of various countries as their finance ministers did themselves, and with the private affairs of some of his clients he was as well acquainted as were their own valets.

To the possession of sound but secret information much of the old man's success was due. The mysterious men and women who so often came and went to that house all poured into his ear facts they had gathered—facts which he afterwards duly noted in the locked green-covered book which he kept in the security of his safe.

Surely the contents of that book would, if published, have created a huge sensation; for there were noted there many ugly incidents in the lives of the men who were most prominent in Europe, together, be it said, with facts concerning them that were highly creditable, and sometimes counterbalanced the black pages of their history.

And this man of many secrets stood there thwarted by a mere chit of a girl!

He regarded her coldly with expressionless eyes. His gaze caused her to shudder. She withdrew from him with instinctive dislike. About this man of millions, whose touch turned everything to gold, there

THE DIRT OF THE CITY.

(Hartford Times.)
Recent experiences in Glasgow have shown that every million cubic feet of chimney gases from an ordinary domestic fire contains 5.4 pounds of heavy, oily, black hydrocarbons, practically solid at ordinary temperature, but when liquified have the properties of a sticky oil.

This little considered source of air pollution is important. The 130,000 inhabited houses of Glasgow have each one fire at least twelve hours daily. These fires must scatter in the air each day thirty-one tons of heavy, oily hydrocarbons.

ENGLISH EXCLUSIVENESS.
(Black and White.)
We English are a strange race, and seem born suspicious of our kind. In London there are signs that a more sociable spirit is abroad; but in the country we still—figuratively speaking—surround ourselves from the inroads of any strangers who may approach, minus unimpeachable and definite introductions.

Mark Twain, at a dinner in New York, said that the recent financial panic had been caused by the removal from the coinage of the motto "In God We Trust."

Afterward, with a smile, he appended the following to that statement:

"Of course I am joking. The panic was caused by a wrong idea of the use and value of money. That is the cause of all money troubles."

MRS. G. H. LA BEAUMME

Mrs. G. H. La Beaumme, De Soto, Mo., praises the wonderful health-giving qualities of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

For fourteen wearisome winters grip and the "tired feeling" were her constant companions. Duffy's restored her to vigorous health.

In gratitude Mrs. La Beaumme writes:

"I have been a sufferer from Grip for 14 winters. When cold weather set in I would have those miserable aching pains, and a tired feeling which never left me till warm weather. Just before Xmas last I had a terrible time with Grip and a cough, also a severe pain in my left side. I had often been advised to try your Malt Whiskey, but as I had often tried various remedies I was skeptical and concluded there was no relief. However, as I was made a Christmas present of two bottles of Duffy's I used it, and before I had finished using them I felt so much better that I used four more bottles, which stopped the aching pains, the cough, the pain in my side, and made me feel like a new person generally.

"I have recommended Duffy's to my friends, who are now using it. I shall always have some in the house, for it has certainly done wonders for me."—Mrs. G. H. La Beaumme.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

If you wish to keep young, strong and vigorous and have on your cheeks the glow of perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions. It tones and strengthens the heart action and purifies the entire system. It is recognized as the great family medicine everywhere.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.00. Write Dr. R. Carran, Consulting Physician, for a free illustrated medical booklet and free advice. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

PRESIDENT WILL KEEP OUT OF IT

NO INTERFERENCE IN COMING PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

THIS IS LOEB'S FORECAST

But Friends of Taft Believe That He Will Take the Stump if Latter Needs Any Assistance

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7.—Hands off; no interference with the campaign; no speeches to whooping political delegations; no trips in to the provinces to help the republican candidates.

This, in brief, is the attitude the president will maintain during the campaign, according to the emphatic assertion of his right hand man, Secretary Loeb, and if he proves a true prophet the coming summer at Oyster Bay will be just about as dull as it was four years ago when the president was running and Secretary Cortelyou as chairman of the republican national committee was conducting the most hushful "gum shoe" canvas on record.

ident was running and Secretary Cortelyou as chairman of the republican national committee was conducting the most hushful "gum shoe" canvas on record.

Must Make Appointments

As during last and several summers previously, the president will not be "at home" to uninvited guests during his coming vacation. Those who wish to see the president must write or telephone to Secretary Loeb or Assistant Secretary Latta asking for an appointment. If they fail to do so and journey to Oyster Bay without an invitation to call, they will have spent their railroad fare and time for nothing. The secret service guards stationed at Sagamore Hill will turn them back, even though they be men of the greatest importance in business or politics, and a fleeting view of the broad porches of the president's cottage will be all they will get of the executive presence. Of course, there are a certain number of men who need no formal invitation and who are always welcome to cross the president's threshold no matter whether he is in Washington or at his home on Long Island. The members of his cabinet, Senator Lodge, and a few others would be passed by the secret service detectives if they put in an appearance at midnight. But even these favored few would not go to Oyster Bay without first sending word of their intention. Secretaries Taft, Root, Cortelyou and Postmaster General Meyer are pretty certain to pay the president two or three visits apiece during the three months he will be at his home, and Secretary Taft, granted he is nominated at Chicago, may be a more frequent visitor if the business of the campaign will allow him to make the trips.

Would Fight for Taft

It is believed by the Taft supporters that should he suddenly find that he needs a "boost" in this or that hotly contested section, the president would stand ready to go to his rescue and make a speech in his behalf. Even the president's closest friends admit that he is quite likely to pitch into the fight with his sleeves bared to the elbows, if his candidate should be in peril or his policies should be seriously attacked. Nothing of this sort is contemplated, it is officially said at the White house, and to prove his hands-off determination, the president has turned down every invitation thus far extended to him for cornerstone layings, monument unveilings, or celebrations of any sort in any part of the country.

If the president follows out his present plans he will leave for Oyster Bay on June 25 and will remain there until about the first of October. His summer offices will be located in the same place as last year and several years before, on the second floor of Moore's provision store, corner of Main and South streets, and his force of secretaries, stenographers, telegraphers and messengers will be the same as last summer.

GANS TO MAKE THREE BATTLES

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—The successful carrying out of the program Joe Gans has mapped out for himself this summer will leave him little time for either play or mischief. Starting out to fight three championship battles in five months is going some. If he beats Unholz in their twenty-round battle on May 14, Gans intends to consider a match with Battling Nelson for July 4 before one of the San Francisco boxing clubs. After defeating the Dane, which Gans regards as being as easy as falling off a log, his next move will be to get Packie McFarland for Labor day for some mining town in Nevada.

As the lightweight champion title will be at stake in each of these contests, Gans, present holder of the title, can hardly afford to take any chances by going into the ring out of condition. So he will have to train very regularly all summer. There is a probability that he and Nelson will not come together on account of Nelson demanding a forty-five round contest.

A Scottish preacher, who found his congregation going to sleep one Sunday before he had fairly begun, suddenly stopped and exclaimed: "Brethren, it's nae fair; gie a mon half a chance. Wait till I get along and then if I'm aye worth listening to, gang to sleep, but dinna gang before I get commenced. Gie a mon a chance!"

COUNCIL ORDERS NORTH SIDE DOCK

PETITION OF MOTORBOAT CLUB MEETS WITH FAVOR

WILL BUILD LANDING AT ONCE

Board of Public Work Is Ordered to Proceed at Once With Construction of Landing Place

The city council last evening passed a resolution authorizing the board of public works to proceed at once with the construction of a fifty-foot floating landing or dock on the North side river front in Black river, for the convenience of North side boat owners. The dock is to cost not more than $90, but for this sum a very serviceable and convenient landing can be constructed.

The officers of the La Crosse Motorboat club yesterday placed in the hands of Alderman G. A. Keller a petition asking for the improvement on the ground that there was a large number of motorboat owners on the North side, all of whom were taxpayers, and that there was at present no suitable place to land. The petition was accompanied by the resolution authorizing the work, and when read was unanimously passed by the aldermen.

The new dock for the North side boat owners will be constructed similar to the one at the foot of State street, and will probably be ready for service in a very short time, as soon as it can be built. It will be located to suit the convenience of the largest number of North side boat-owners.

SCANTILY ATTIRED ASPIRANTS BUSY

TRAINING ON FOR THE INTER-STATE ATHLETIC MEET

BASEBALL TEAM IN WINONA

Local High School Warriors Expect To Bring Back Scalp of the Minnesotans Today

The people residing in the neighborhood of the High school have become accustomed to seeing scantily clad figures racing around the running track and have ceased to wonder at the strange antics and decollete attire of the aspirants to places on the track team. However, all these antics are in a good cause, and if they help to win the interstate championship for La Crosse they will not be taken seriously. It does not seem strange that one little girl who accompanied by her mother passing the grounds asked "What's the matter with those boys?" when she saw several white clad athletes going into convulsions trying to jump over an overgrown saw horse. As far as can be judged from the track material that has so far turned out it looks as if La Crosse might get a "smell out of it anyway." The preliminary meet will be held next Saturday afternoon at the fair grounds and this meet will decide who are eligible to take part in the interstate and Madison meets. The trophies for the interstate meet will be exhibited in Parkers' window on May 10th.

Baseball Team at Winona. Captain Novak and his bunch of High school ball tossers are at Winona today and expects to bring home a victory. According to Manager Brindley the Winona crowd is a strong one but he expects to "put it all over them." Dahlgren and Walker have both been on the sick list but will be on the diamond tomorrow. The batteries for the home team are M. Novak, pitcher, and Frank Novak, catcher.

No Regular Debate. No regular debate was held at the Lincoln-Douglas Debating society last evening as the debate which should have come off had been postponed until next Friday. The debate scheduled was "Resolved that a saloon license in La Crosse should cost $500 and that the number should be limited to 75."

LANDMARKS GIVE WAY TO PROGRESS

CHICAGO HOUSES TO BE REPLACED BY BIG HOTEL

CHICAGO STREET'S NAMES

Standard Oil Company Owns Much Property on "Crooked Street;" Others Are Significant

CHICAGO, May 9.—Landmarks that have stood for thirty-five years at the corner of La Salle and Madison streets in this city are being demolished by a gang of wreckers to make room for a new hotel, which will be one of the largest hostleries in the world. The old buildings were mementoes of the reconstruction period immediately following the big fire, and one of the structures, the La Salle building, was an example of the earliest attempt at fire-proof construction in Chicago. A generation ago this building was "pointed to with pride" by boastful citizens as a combination of modern conveniences and architectural beauty. It has sheltered under its roof some of the prominent firms that have helped to build up the big business of the west. Now it is fast crumbling under the pickaxes of the wrecking gang, a sacrifice to the progress of the city. The new hotel will be a gigantic structure, one story higher than the Masonic Temple, one of the "sights" of the city. It will have a frontage of 178 feet in La Salle street and 126½ feet in Madison street, and will contain 7,000,000 cubic feet, more than the space contained in any except three buildings in the city, the new courthouse, the federal building and the First National bank block. The weight will be carried on eighty-nine concrete caissons, which will extend down 120 feet to solid rock. It will consist of twenty-one stories, and will be a little less than 300 feet high. The weight of the steel to be used in building the new hotel will be 7,000 tons, while 4,500,000 bricks will enter into its construction. The building will contain 45 miles of electric light and power cables, 60 miles of conduit tubes and 20 miles of telephone wire.

Others of lugubrious tastes live on "Cemetery drive," and others, perhaps the adventurous, live on "Alaska street," or "Panama street," with India and Ceylon near at hand. In lieu of suburban life, householders in the outskirts have "Plum street" and "Pear street." One of the main thoroughfares for the hurrying feet of clerks in the morning hours is "Rush street," and "many are the dear ones" who cross "Jordan Court." The discovery of the Standard Oil's titles in "Crooked street" was made when the assessors ran down the ownership for taxation purposes.

An entry in an old diary unearthed in a search for information about financial panics of West Served early days shows Us in that in 1873 as in Old Panics, 1907 it was the wealth of the west which was relied upon to restore the business equilibrium. The panic of 1873, like that of 1857, was attributable to over-speculation, principally in lands in which Americans always have speculated far more than in any other thing. The failure of Jay Cooke came in that year and many big Chicago houses had narrow escapes from shipwreck, and the outlook was bad. It was even proposed to close the board of trade of Chicago, but a committee of prominent merchants, including Marshall Field, L. Z. Leiter and J. W. Doane, called upon the officials of that organization. In the old diary just found a Chicago business man, now prominent, records the argument made against the closing of the board, one which is equally pertinent in these days of proposed congressional legislation which would practically bring about the closing of grain and provision exchanges the country over. "We are members of the Chicago board of trade," said this committee, "and while we are dry goods merchants, we are entitled to all the rights and privileges of the board of trade that you are, and when you talk of closing it we must emphatically protest. If ever there was a time when the board should remain open it is now of all times, to afford the producer a place where he can market his produce and obtain money to pay his debts. Close the board and you close up the business on State street." The committee remained until they were assured the board of trade would remain open. The item is interesting as showing the close relationship existing between the board of trade transactions and other legitimate lines of business of all kinds, which would suffer if the marketing of the nation's crops for future as well as immediate deliveries were prohibited.

A woman suffrage lecturer recently brought down the house with the following argument: "I have no vote, but my groom has. I have a great respect for that man in the stables, but I am sure if I were to go to him and say, 'John, will you exercise the franchise?' he would reply: 'Please, mum, which horse be that?'"

"I must get you another chair for the kitchen, Katie; I see you have only one." "Shure, you needn't mind, ma'am. I have none but gentlemen callers."

CHARGED WITH BURGLARIZING
A FISHING SHANTY

HOWARD JURY IS STILL OUT

Jurors Return With Disagreement,
but Judge Fruit Refuses to Accept and Demands Verdict

Circuit court jury this morning acquitted Charles Lowry of a charge of burglarizing a fishing shanty on land owned by David DeCohen, opposite Dresbach. The prisoner was represented by Attorney Frank E. Withrow who convinced the jury that Lowry was not guilty of the crime charged.

Howard Jury Out.
The jury in the James Howard overcoat stealing case is still out, having been out since 10 o'clock Friday morning. This morning the jury returned to the court room to report that they could not agree. Judge Fruit after declaring the evidence was simple and should allow an easy verdict, directed the jury to return to the jury room until a verdict was reached. It is thought probable that the jury will disagree, as it is understood the twelve men are hopelessly split.

Memorial services for the late Attorney A. E. Bleekman, Sr., were held in circuit court this afternoon at 2:30. Col. G. M. Woodward delivered the memorial address. There were no cases on after the Lowry case went to the jury, the afternoon being devoted to the memorial tribute to the late Mr. Bleekman.

MARVELOUS WORK OF DEVELOPMENT

The telephone system is unquestionably the most marvelous of man's works, and its greatest marvel is that it has been brought to its present state of perfection in less than half the span of a human life. It is a striking fact, too, that every advance in telephony has been accomplished by the work of the Bell experts, while most of the men contributing to this development are still living and active.

The Bell companies, of which the Wisconsin Telephone Company is one of the oldest, thus always have been at the head of the march of progress. Every improvement or economy—each meaning ultimate saving to the public—is immediately available to them. Switchboards and all the intricate apparatus connected with them; line building; underground construction; even the process of hardening copper wire so as to give it strength to bear its own weight were devised and developed after the telephone instrument was invented. The Wisconsin Company's plant is kept up-to-the-moment all the time to make the most efficient service possible, even at the cost of more than one partial reconstruction.

MILK INSPECTION ORDINANCE PASSED

COUNCIL TAKES ACTION TO PROTECT PUBLIC

MANY MINOR MATTERS UP

E. C. Raymond Is Elected Supervisor—No Action on Display of Fruit and Vegetables

The ordinance regulating the sale of milk and cream which provides that all dealers in milk must take out a permit and all cattle furnishing milk for the use within the city limits must be kept in sanitary stables and must be submitted to the tuberculin test before milk from the animals can be sold, was passed by the council at its May meeting last night. The ordinance makes it the duty of the health officer to see that its provisions are enforced, taking effect the first of November.

Relating to the protection of the public at railroad crossings, Alderman Downs asked for information on the ordinance killed at the last meeting. After being told that the ordinance was placed on file in the city clerk's office and that it could not be brought up at last night's meeting, he demanded that the ordinance which he submitted as a substitute at that time be brought up for passage. On being told that it had not received its first and second reading and could not be passed at that meeting, Alderman Downs read the ordinance and it was given its first and second reading and referred to the railroad and ordinance committee. The ordinance provides that street cars must stop at a given distance of all railroad crossings and that the conductor flag such crossings. It includes the Mill street crossing which was omitted from the ordinance killed at the last meeting.

The La Crosse City Railway company petitioned the council for an extension of one year's time in which to make the proposed extension of the street car line on Main street from the present tracks to the Losey boulevard. The matter was referred to the committee on railroads.

The communication from the mayor in reference to setting out shade trees was placed in the hands of the park commission.

The macadamizing of Vine street from Sixth to Twelfth street which was laid over at the last meeting because the property owners asked for lime stone dressing instead of granite top dressing was brought up by the special street improvement committee and the original plan was adopted and the board authorized to advertise for bids and proceed with the letting of the contract.

No action on Displays. No action was taken in the recommendation from the mayor regarding an ordinance to be drafted preventing the display of fruits and foodstuffs on sidewalks. The matter was read by the health committee, but no action taken.

The board of public works was authorized to advertise for bids and let contracts for the furnishing of coal at the pumping station, schools, city hall and fire departments.

The Advance Bedding company was granted permission to erect an addition to their factory at Front and Vine streets. The structure is to be ironclad.

A petition was referred to the railroad committee, from the property owners on upper Main street, to have the La Crosse City Railway company proceed and complete their extension to the Losey boulevard.

No Holiday Circuses. A petition from the Merchants' Protective association asking that the council refrain from granting licenses to circuses on Memorial day, Fourth of July and Decoration day, was granted.

The report of the board of public works regarding permanent election booths was referred to the committee of finance and grounds and buildings.

On nomination by Alderman Rose, E. C. Raymond was elected supervisor of the 13th ward. There being a vacancy caused by the former candidate not qualifying for the office. The board of public works was authorized to have a sidewalk laid in front of the pumping station without the intervention of a formal contract and not to exceed a cost of $200. The board was also authorized to proceed with the work of constructing a retaining wall, walks and driveways in the Riverside park not to exceed a cost of $1,250.

A resolution was adopted granting the officers of the fair association permission to allow the Saengerfest association to hold its picnic at the fair grounds July 26.

Remove Wooden Poles. The board of public works was authorized to notify telephone companies and light companies that all wooden poles in the brick paved districts must be removed within thirty days.

The board of public works was authorized to advertise for bids and let the contract for the constructing of sidewalks at the school buildings, corner Hayes and Wood streets, and the corner of Farnam street and the Mormon Coulee road.

The committee on lights recommended the changing of the location of a number of arc lights and that several be dispensed with. The recommendation was adopted and the changes are to be made prior to June 15.

A petition was read by Alderman Grover from the property owners on Rose street to prevent the La Crosse City Railway company from laying tracks on that street to avoid the Mill street crossing. The petition was referred to the railroad committee.

Frank Kohn, manager of the Hotel Jefferson, was granted a saloon license.

The ordinance creating a park

SUCCESS IS UP TO THE FANS NOW

AGREED LA CROSSE JUST HAVE 25,000 ATTENDANCE

THAT OR NO LEAGUE BALL

President Elliott Urges Attendance from the Beginning to Make Matter a "Dead Clinch"

It's up to the fans now, if La Crosse is again represented in the Wisconsin-Illinois league after the present season. At the end of the season La Crosse must show an attendance of 25,000 or forfeit the franchise in the league. This understanding was reached at a meeting and unless the 25,000 is forthcoming at the middle of September, league ball in La Crosse will be a "has been."

Eberly will do the throwing for La Crosse tomorrow and this alone will prove a great feature of the game and the opposing thrower will be Converse, considered one of the best in the league.

With Eberly and Converse opposing each other it will be "battle royal" and the fans cannot afford to miss it. The players on the local team are fast rounding into shape and the team work is "getting better all the time."

Shields, who has been trying out for a field position with Manager Hawley's Colts will either this afternoon or evening be given to the Fond du Lac aggregation. Manager Lynch took his players to the field near Gund's brewery this morning and put them through a few hours of stiff practice.

Flynn and Rothel will be in the box for La Crosse today while Parker will probably be sent in for the Fond du Lac bunch.

BANKERS ARE NO MATCH FOR FIREMEN

The Bankers' baseball team again fell to defeat before the mighty firemen yesterday afternoon. Although the bankers put up a better showing than in their former game the firemen won 6 to 5.

AMATEUR GAME

Jos. Kabat's Capitalists will play Pete Hettinger's Bankers at the old baseball grounds near Gund's brewery at 9 o'clock Sunday morning for $25 a side. The players will meet at Tenth and Hood streets and preceded by a band will march to West avenue and Denton street, where a selection will be rendered by the band. The parade will then proceed south on West avenue to the ball grounds. The batting order of the capitalists:

Frank Moulis 2b; A. Konetchy, 1b; Pink Bergoust, c; Steve Bersinski, 3b-c; A. Major, ss; Frank Techmer, lf; Tot Smith, rf; Jno Gannon, cf; Larsen, p-ss.

Chic Stange, Buck Weiss and Kostelski, substitutes.

GRANITE SHOWER.

A granite shower was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bumert, 1025 Ziesler street, in honor of Miss Bertha Ristow of Goose Island who will soon be united in marriage with John Schmalz. There was a large crowd and a delightful evening spent by all who were present.

commission, passed at the last meeting of the council, was again brought up last evening in order that the second section of the ordinance be changed creating two park districts. When the ordinance was read Alderman Downs objected and asked that the number of members on the commission be changed to five and a North side man be named on the commission. The proposition was voted down and the old ordinance will stand, which leaves but one park district.

THE BRIDE'S CHOICE

EXPERT DECLARES BODY NOT GUNNESS'

learned that Andrew Helgalline, of Aberdeen, was one of the victims, Chase sent his friends to learn if his brother also was one of the victims.

Relatives and friends of Edward Canary of Pine Lake, Ind., two miles from here, also are here searching for a clew to Canary's whereabouts. He was known to have visited Mrs. Gunness at her farm and disappeared late in 1906.

Look for Fort Wayne Men. Chief of Police Anglenbruck, Sheriff Grieco and Dr. White of Fort Wayne, Ind., drove over to the Gunness farm yesterday and were admitted to the improvised morgue, where the cemetery is slowly depositing its contents. They examined all of the bodies carefully as though they were in search of someone, but they denied that they had anything in view when they made the trip except to inspect the work of Mrs. Gunness. Notwithstanding their denial, it is reported here that three well-known men in Fort Wayne who have dropped out of sight within the last two years are believed to be in Mrs. Gunness's garden plot.

Dr. Shoemaker came to the fore yesterday with information which may lead to the identification of one more body.

Horse Trader Killed, Too?

He said that a man from Montana, who like the man from Iowa also is believed to have passed through Mrs. Gunness's sausage factory into the farm yard, drove from the west and put up at a house in the neighborhood. He was enamored of a young woman in the vicinity and told her that he was a horse trader, although his name is not remembered. Before leaving he ran out of money and wishing to remain near his sweetheart, he told her he intended visiting the farm "over yonder," meaning Gunness hill, and "see if he could not sell the old lady his horse and buggy."

Like most of the men who came under the spell of this evil enchantress, he consented to become a guest at the house. Dr. Shoemaker said he was seen there on two different days after he called at the place in the hope of making a sale. Then he vanished. But the horse and buggy remained behind. The buggy is now in Mrs. Gunness's barn as evidence of the story's truth. It was a light two-seated vehicle with red running gear, and there are hopes it might lead to the identification of its former owner.

Why Did She Kill Farm Hands?

There were three farm hands among Mrs. Gunness's victims. All of them have appeared to have come to their death in exactly the same manner and to have been butchered subsequently by the same master hand. All of them were sewed up in gunny sacks and in every case the head was thrown down carelessly at the feet. None of the heads was wrapped up, as the bodies and limbs were.

There is reason to believe that Mrs. Gunness had a genuine monomania for murder—or, in other words, that she was a woman of dual personality, a moderately kind and indulgent mother at certain times, and a demon without fear of God, of man, or of the law, at others.

No other theory will explain the murders of her farm hands. They did not have money and their deaths could not have profited her in any way.

Peterson Lived at Wild Rose.

GRAND RAPIDS, Wis., May 9.—Carl Peterson, who corresponded with Mrs. Belle Gunness, the man-killer of La Porte, Ind., it has developed, lived at Wild Rose, Wis., a few miles from here, and not at Waupaca, as reported. He happened to be at Waupaca when he sent a letter which was opened by the executor of the woman's estate after her departure. Peterson has disappeared from Waupaca because of the embarrassment and only friends know of his whereabouts.

Mrs. Oscar Anderson, 32 North Center street, Minneapolis, is here looking for some clew to her husband. He was a carpenter and disappeared a year ago after drawing $700 from the bank. She says she knew he was infatuated with some one in La Porte, but she wasn't sure it was Mrs. Gunness.

BOY FINED FOR CAR JUMPING

Ralph Taylor, aged 13 years, of 1903 Loomis street, was this morning fined $1 and costs, amounting to $3.50 for jumping on and off street cars and stealing a ride.

The lad was arrested yesterday afternoon when he was caught in the practice on returning from the ball grounds. The trouble with young boys stealing rides and jumping on and off cars has been called to the attention of the police for some time past and the crusade against this practice was started yesterday. A close watch will be kept in the future and all caught will be arrested and brought into court.

Superintendent Shaw stated today that the dangerous practice was going to be stopped and the railroad officials will work together with the police to put a stop to this work. The fine was paid.

DOERFLINGER TEAM LA CROSSE CHAMPIONS

The Doerflinger Park Store Base ball nine played another game at the Hogan school grounds winning from the Junior Athletes by the score of 4 to 3. Both teams were unable to score until the sixth inning when the Athletics hit in 2 runs through an error. It was a pitchers' battle in which Krause had the better of the argument, but one hit and striking out twelve men.

MOTORBOAT CLUB'S PETTIBONE PICNIC

BIG AFFAIR WILL PROBABLY BE HELD MEMORIAL DAY

TRANSPORT CITIZENS FREE

Club Will Also Petition the Mayor to Use Influence to Chase "Dakota" Pleasure Boat Off River

If suggestions made at the directors' meeting of the La Crosse Motorboat club last night are carried out by the entertainment committee to be appointed, the people of La Crosse will be given free launch rides Memorial day from the public dock at the foot of State street to Pettibone park and return. The club plans to hold a preliminary festival, and although the date has not been set definitely, it is probable that the picnic will be held Memorial day. It is planned to hold the affair at Pettibone park, where a band will be stationed during the afternoon and evening, and many forms of amusement will be arranged. The plan includes a scheme to form a fleet of boats in the club and to run a free service from the dock at State street to the Pettibone park docks, transporting picnic parties to the park in the motorboats, and bringing them back in the afternoon or evening if they choose. The plan met with instantaneous favor at the meeting, and will be a preliminary picnic, other large events being planned for later in the season.

Get After "Houseboat."

The directors passed a resolution authorizing the secretary to file a protest with the mayor against the "Dakota pleasure boat," which has been established on the Minnesota side of the river for immoral purposes, and to offer any assistance possible in having the place driven from local waters. It is pointed out that a free launch, advertised to conduct the "boys" to the houseboat, and that the public dock is being used as a rendezvous for rough characters who patronize the place. The influence of this is deprecated and all possible efforts will be made to nip the evil in the bud.

The club took in a large number of new members last night and there is every indication that it will be the largest motorboat club on the Mississippi this summer. It is desired to get all motorboat and launch owners in local waters to join, and the membership committee is meeting with gratifying success. Archie Mosher of the North side was added to the membership committee last night.

News was received during the meeting of the favorable action taken by the council last night on the petition for a North side landing, and created considerable enthusiasm.

Mrs. H. M. Rounce leaves tonight for St. Paul, where she will visit relatives and friends before joining her husband, formerly with the La Crosse Telephone company, who is located at Grand Forks, N. D.

DEFAULTING BANKER CLAIMS SURETIES

WHITEHALL, Wis., May 9.—(Special.)—Joseph Pugh, the alleged defaulting cashier of the State Bank of Arcadia, was arraigned here today, Attorney H. A. Anderson, of the firm of Anderson & Ekern, appearing for the defendant.

Charged with a shortage of $9,000 approximately, it has been arranged that Pugh's bonds should be fixed at $8,000. Through his attorney, Pugh announced that he was prepared to waive preliminary examination, but that his bondsmen could be asked to continue until 11 o'clock of that day. District Attorney Ensel consented to the arrangement.

It had not been expected that Pugh would be able to raise the bonds, and the identity of the men who he claims are going to put them up is a mystery. There is some suspicion that the requested delay is merely sought in a last effort to raise the bonds, but Pugh asserts positively that he has secured the sureties.

AID TAXES WITH WORTHLESS CHECK

Ed Wimmer was brought before Judge John Brindley in county court this morning on a charge of giving a check which was not secured by funds in the bank, thus violating a state law.

The complaint against Wimmer was made by County Treasurer William Weimar, on the grounds that Wimmer paid him a check calling for $52.50 for taxes and that when the check was turned into the National bank payment was refused.

Wimmer explained that he kept an account with the bank was unaware it was overdrawn. The case was postponed until May 18, and in the event that Wimmer deposits sufficient funds to make good the amount in the meanwhile the prosecution will likely be dropped.

$100,000 HALL FOR HIBBING

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY.

The week in society has been fairly active, small functions, however, seeming to be uppermost in favor. The next week promises more in the way of church activities, the missionary convention which will be held in the Congregational church on Tuesday and Wednesday, being full of interest for all.

The theatrical event of the week will be "Brewster's Millions" which comes to the theatre on Friday evening, May 15th, and the musical event, of not only the week, but of the year in La Crosse, will be the appearance of Mme. Gadski on Thursday evening, May 14th. This will be a society event of interest, no doubt, as well. Mrs. Leslie Carter's coming on May 26th in "Du Barry," is another event of stellar importance.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Harrison of 620 South Seventh street, announce the engagement of their daughter Mildred Louise, to Shegetaro Morikubo, D. C., Ph. D. The wedding will take place in the near future. They will reside in Minneapolis, where the doctor expects to open a sanitarium.

MME. GADSKI'S COMING WILL BE BIG SOCIETY EVENT

On next Thursday evening, at the La Crosse theatre, the world famous Wagnerian soprano and grand opera star, Mme. Johanna Gadski, will delight local music lovers. The importance of this event cannot be over-looked, for Mme. Gadski is one of the world's greatest artists, and the opportunity to hear her should be gladly welcomed.

La Crosse is demonstrating its ability to appreciate the best, from the number of real stars which have come here so far this season, and a large and enthusiastic audience will be sure to greet Mme. Gadski next Thursday evening.

A perfectly disinterested "press notice" was given Mme. Gadski in Town Topics of April 23rd, when in speaking of Fremstad and another soprano, singing in one of Wagner's operas in the Metropolitan Opera house, in New York city, a few weeks ago it said: "It is significant of Corried's managerial ability, and his knowledge of Wagner requirements, that he allowed Loeffler-Burckard and Fremstad to sing the 'Brundhilde' roles, while the best Wagner soprano in the world, Gadski, sat in a box and listened to the slaughter being done." Mme. Gadski is one of the leading prima donnas of the Metropolitan Opera company, and is giving a specified number of concerts throughout the country this spring, and it is through the efforts of Mr. Carl B. Noelle that she is being brought here next week. A large party of Winona people are also planning to hear Mme. Gadski on Thursday evening.

When in New York, Mme. Gadski lives at an uptown hotel, for with constant rehearsing she has little time for domesticity. But in Berlin she has her own charming home with its many spacious rooms, all lavishly provided with beautiful furniture and hangings. There are many rare works of art, while plants and flowers are everywhere.

In this beautiful home, where she spends her summers with her husband and little daughter, Gadski forgets the exigencies of artist life, except for a certain number of hours a day which she faithfully devotes to practice and study. Mme. Gadski is constantly enlarging her repertoire, for she is an inveterate worker and her own severest critic.

The results of Gadski's summer study are shown in her concert programs, which invariably show a number of novelties in addition to the great arias and lieder for whose rendition she is famed.

CONCERT AT SPRING GROVE BY THE CHORAL CLUB

The concert which was given by the Choral club at Spring Grove, Minn., under the auspices of the La Crosse School of Music, on Tuesday evening, was a splendid success, and despite the threatening weather, the house was filled. Mr. U. S. Kerr came from Minneapolis to assist his brother and was a great drawing attraction for the club. The work done under Mr. James Kerr's direction for the past three months, has been most excellent and the fifty members are looking forward to an organization, next year, that will rank with the best.

SONG PROGRAM FOR SUNDAY EVENING

The English Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, West avenue and Ferry street, Rev. J. J. Clemens, pastor, will render the following song service tomorrow evening:

Organ prelude—"The Sabbath

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, and especially Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Echnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of American Dispensatory; Prof. Jno. M. Scudder, M. D., Author of Specific Medicines; Prof. Lawrence Johnson, M. D., Med. Dept. Univ. of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., Author of Materia Medica and Prof. Bennett Medical College, Chicago. Send name and address on Postal Card to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authorities and many others endorsing, in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

HETTY GREEN LEAVES FLAT

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 9.—Green, the richest woman in the world, has moved from the flat in Washington street, Hoboken, for which she has paid $15 a month for several years, and now lives at the Plaza, where her rent is thirteen times as much as it was in Hoboken.

When Mrs. Green exchanged the severe simplicity of the Hoboken flat for the Savoniere carpets and the rose silk hangings for a $15 a day suite in the Plaza she took with her to share her altered fortunes with her daughter, Miss Sylvia Green, and her maid.

She Likes It, Too.

Mrs. Green admitted last night that she likes to dwell in marble halls, and although she had hoped it would not become known generally that she had begun to spend money so fast, she had decided she was entitled to the best $15 a day will buy at the Plaza.

Dressed in black, she sat last night upon an upholstered divan in the reception room of the hotel idly looking into a mirror that cost a lot of money, and as idly playing with a bit of tapestry that cost a lot more money.

"This," said Mrs. Green, surveying the costly furnishings that lay about her, "this is better than Bellow Falls."

At Bellow Falls, Vt., Mrs. Green has a summer home, to which she will go later in the season.

Can Help Herself.

Mrs. Green knows many persons, who live at the Plaza. She has called on some of them and some of them have called on her. To those with whom she has talked she has pointed out the advantages of Central Park as a field for exercise. Mrs. Green is fond of walking. She had not been at the Plaza before she went there to engage apartments. When she saw there was an automatic clock, an automatic heat regulator and a telephone in her apartments, she said:

"It may be some comfort to know what time it is, and it may be pleasant to know how hot or how cold it is, but I can get along without that telephone. Just tell them down stairs that Hetty Green hasn't any telephone."

She was interested when she found that on each floor of the hotel there is a full office staff, a clerk, maids, bellboys and telephone operators.

"Sakes alive!" said Mrs. Green, "what do all you people find to do?"

"We answer calls," said one of the maids.

"I won't bother you much," said Mrs. Green. She has kept her word.

"PERSONAL LIBERTY" TOPIC OF IRISH

By a reference to the church announcements it is noticed that the Rev. J. W. Irish, pastor of the First Methodist church, is to preach on the subject of personal liberty. A great deal is being said on this subject just now and this pastor evidently believes that there is more than one side to the question.

The annual memorial service will take place at this church on Sunday morning, May 24, and all the patriotic societies of the city are invited to attend.

This church also announces that there will be a nursery maintained by the ladies of the church each

Sunday morning to enable mothers who would otherwise be kept at home by their children to have the opportunity of attending the services of the church.

FLINT SAYS LAUGH AND YOU'LL WIN

MILLENNIUM TO BE BROUGHT ABOUT BY SMILES

HYPNOTIST SAYS "TRY IT"

Dr. Flint Who Has Delighted La Crosse Audiences for Week Gives Out an Interview

If Dr. Herbert L. Flint is to be believed, the millennium, dreamed of by the philosophers and written of by the poets is at hand, and ideal conditions, when suffering and discord shall vanish, and even death be warded off for a longer period than at present will soon prevail upon the face of the earth. These conditions, if Dr. Flint is to be believed, are to be brought about through no other force than laughter.

"Scowls and tears and anger came with the fall of man," declared Dr. Flint in an interview this morning, "but in laughter the Creator left with humanity a means of regaining the high plane upon which earth beings were originally supposed to exist."

"Try it yourself," says the hypnotist, "and see how much brighter the world will appear and see if a little millennium all your own does not dawn for you right here on earth. When you go to bed at night, give yourself the suggestion that when you awaken you are going to be bright and cheerful."

"When you do awaken, if you have a frown on and feel that your head would like to ache, just get up and smile at yourself in the mirror. Keep on smiling, even if you have to force yourself to do it, think cheerful thoughts, and in a few min-

MUSICAL ANCHORS ARE SEEN

Young Man Accustomed to Playing On the Docks Devises Invention from Anchor

Harry Woods, a native of Duluth, Minn., as a boy developed wonder proficiency as a performer on the drums, tympanies and xylophones. It was the habit of young Woods to spend as much of his time on the docks where the vessels that touched the port landed, as possible. Woods could always be found with a pair of drum sticks about him using them on every object he could find that gave forth sound. An old anchor that was cast off by some small craft was the inspiration that led to the invention of a most peculiar instrument, or more properly speaking, a combination of instruments.

It was the custom of young Woods to drum on this old anchor in his frequent visits to the dock in Duluth. In after years while playing in various theaters of the country his mind would go back to the old anchor. After years of study he evolved in his mind an idea as to the combination of a number of anchors composed of a peculiar metal. The culmination of his experiments resulted in the invention and completion of the instruments which he has patented as the "musical anchors."

These instruments can be attuned to accompany band or orchestra. The volume of sound is as soft as the notes of the lute or as loud as the

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

the caricature presented by the minstrels. The genial secretary of war would scarcely recognize the picture of himself as presented, yet it serves the purpose for which it was intended—to bring forth a good, hearty laugh and we doubt not if Taft could see the skit that he would enjoy the fun immensely. The idea of himself going to the Philippines to seek the banquette at which he is made to speak while the Filipinos eat—the burlesque bull fight where the secretary is forced to fight the bull in order to win votes is simply too ridiculous to resist laughing at. The secretary's final triumph as a modern pugilist—the merry widow and her hat—the dance of the Filipinos might be a little too strenuous for the secretary in reality, but that he would enjoy the humor is utes you will be surprised to find how cheerful you will feel. Smile at the people you meet on the street. When someone says unpleasant things to you, or you feel like saying unpleasant things to others, just smile a little, and if people associate with you require reprimanding just smile a little while you are giving the reproof. The person will then profit by the reproof instead of going away from you with resentment and anger in his heart.

"If things go wrong at home, still smile. Never let outsiders know that things are wrong. No matter how bad conditions may be, if you smile, people will think that you must have hidden resources, and that things are not bad with you after all. Smile all the while, laugh some of the while. Don't let your smile be a grin, or your laugh be a sneer or a derisive one. Let it ring out loud and clear and happy. When the day is gone you will be surprised at how much better things have gone. If when a married couple have their first little quarrel, the husband or the wife would smile and speak lovingly and smilingly of some little incident of courtship days, there would be no divorces, for what person could go straight from the smiling face and loving laughter of their life mate straight to the office of a smiling lawyer and ask for a divorce?"

"No man could commit a crime against another while he was smiling with him, and lawyers would have no civil cases and few criminal ones, for what two people who had been smiling together, could go before a smiling judge and jury and fight with each other through two smiling lawyers? Less people would be ill if they forced themselves to smile, the physicians would have less work and even the undertakers would have less to do, and the funeral directors would have to go into the business of teaching people how to smile. There would be no war, for diplomacy between nations would be one long continuation of smiles."

"Do not think I am picturing a hilarious silly world, but a world where good nature would reign and where all mortals would really be brothers. I may be a visionary," said Dr. Flint as he smiled that famous smile of his that has carried him through the years to success, "but I thoroughly believe in good nature as a cure for everything, and I look forward to the day when my Eutopian dream shall come true."

trombone. It is composed of six anchors and played by five persons. The tones are blended as harmoniously as any combination of instruments of bell like sound. Their expense will probably keep them from general use, yet several orders have been received for them, one from Europe.

The five Musical Marines are using one of these instruments with the Al G. Field Greater Minstrels. It has attracted widespread attention. When practical it is on exhibition in the lobby of the theater during the day and attracts widespread attention. In addition to being a fine musical invention it is a beautiful piece of mechanism seven by ten feet in size.

Secretary Taft has left the country for Panama but we still have a reminder of his ponderous presence in a foregone conclusion.

Al G. Field, the minstrel man, is not only a great admirer of the big secretary of war but enjoys his acquaintance. Mr. Field is responsible for the skit and plays the character of Taft. It is one of the laughing features of his minstrel show. At the La Crosse theater Saturday, May 16, matinee and night.

COMEDY OF MERIT BOOKED FOR FRIDAY

"BREWSTER'S MILLIONS" IS A RARE PIECE

BRISTLES WITH NEW COMEDY

Manager Gage Closes Arrangements For Presentation of Successful New York Play

Cohan & Harris' comedians will present that internationally successful comedy, "Brewster's Millions" at the La Crosse theater, on Friday, May 15. It is with due regard to the "eternal fitness of things" that "Brewster's Millions" is called a comedy for it embraces not only the most ludicrously laughable situations but bristles and fairly bubbles over with the brightest and cleverest comedy dialogue. In the original story as written by George Barr McCutcheon these qualities were largely responsible for the enormous success of the book. Much humor, which is apparent only by actual delineation was naturally sacrificed on the altar of descriptive literature. This was evidently apparent to Messrs. Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley, who so cleverly transplanted the book to the stage. The scenes so graphically described by Mr. McCutcheon have been placed before the footlights in so realistic a manner by producer Frederic Thompson that one marvels at his undoubted cleverness. It only remained for the play to be capably and properly cast and this has been done with an unstinted hand by Messrs. Cohan & Harris, who have placed in support of Mr. Robert Ober (who appears as "Montgomery Brewster") the following well known actors: James Montgomery, Louis Haines, James W. Horne, Brinsley Shaw, Edmund Mortimer, George Crossette, John Alden, Richard E. Webster and the Misses June Mathis, Olive North, Ada May Talbot, Ida Lee Caston and Nellie Black, which list should be a safe guarantee of the excellence of the performance to be seen here.

THE GLORY OF NEW YORK.

(London Spectator.)

What other city is there of like size which matches it (New York) in position? It is a seaside city, the salt water laves its feet. As the traveler approaches it he thinks of Venice rising from the sea, or perhaps he is reminded of ancient Tyre, which "stood out in the sea as a hand from the wrist," and of which the houses were impressively tall. "Impressive" is not too indulgent a word for the skyscrapers of New York—clean faced, simple, original and audacious, they are characteristic of the land and of the people; they are not ugly concessions to utility, but a rather grand adaptation of architecture to circumstances. The ancients, harassed with dread of piracy, would not have dared to build a city like New York on the edge of a great harbor open to the sea. It is something which the modern world alone could have given us.

FISH AS FOOD.

(London Globe.)

There is not the smallest reason to suppose that a meat-eating nation would be superior either in intellect or physique to a fish-eating one. We, as a race, were never stronger than we fed on fish to such an extent that the careful guardian of the newly entered apprentice commonly inserted a clause in his indentures stipulating that he was not to be required to eat salmon more than three days a week.

18 YEARS FOR WIFE MURDER.

DES MOINES, May 9.—Edgar Davis, who recently shot and killed his wife while he was intoxicated and later shot the city physician, who came to attend her, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and was sentenced to eighteen years in the penitentiary.

When the average man has a favor to give, he gives it to an enemy, thinking his friends are all right, anyway. This is a foolish mistake. The only way to have friends is to deserve them.

THE CATS.

If every pussy-willow were
A kitten soft and gray,
When snowflakes fell upon their fur,
What would those pussies say?
Each tiny paw, despairingly,
Would clutch the slender bough,
And every little foot would cry,
"Meow! Meow! Meow!"

But when the sunshine came again,
And April days grew warm,
I'm sure that all the pussies then
Would quite forget the storm,
And stretch out all along the stem
To dry their silken fur,
While every single one of them
Would purr and purr and purr.

And if children, full of glee
At pets of such a kind,
Ran toward the pussy-willow tree,
What do you think they'd find?
Why, every pussy from her place
Would spring to share the fun,
And thru the fields a merry race
Would run and run and run.

A CHAT WITH THE EDITOR.

My Dear Juniors:
Many of you have forgotten the Junior page this week. I'm afraid, although, the letters that have been sent in are very nice, and nearly all of you that have written have written on the subject. Now, Juniors, I don't like to scold, but I do think it strange, that so many of you don't know or forget the next week's subject. Some have written in and say they don't know what it is, and some have telephoned and asked me, and there it was right in the letter, my "Chat With the Editor," and I thought you always read that, for that is where I have told you all about the other things that you have been so interested in.

Well, I do hope you will read it more faithfully this week, and also remember what I said about getting in your letters EARLY. It does help so, to have them come in Monday and Tuesday instead of later on.

There was no response at all regarding the matter of the bedding for the City Mission, so I suppose the Juniors didn't give it much thought, perhaps you can do more later on, with clothes for poor people.

The topic for next week will be "A RUNAWAY RIDE." You may tell of any ride that you know of, or you may make up a story about a train, automobile or horses or anything interesting. I am sure the Juniors can all write fine essays on this subject. Hoping to hear from you all, nice and early this week, I am,

Your loving friend,
BERTHA BURTON.

A BOY'S UNSELFISHNESS.

Irwin was a poor little boy who lived in one of our western states. His mamma and papa had once been rich, but had lost all their money.

He had two little sisters, Helen and Edith—and the children were very happy even though they were poor.

Their parents had always managed to save some money each year so the children could have a Merry Christmas.

One year, the crops were so poor that all they could give each child for Christmas was three sticks of candy. Helen and Edith ate theirs on Christmas day, but Irwin saved his, without letting his sisters know.

The next Christmas they were poorer than ever. When Christmas came, their parents could not give them even three sticks of candy. But when Christmas eve came Irwin brought out his candy and put it in the girls' stockings—he also put one piece in his own stocking, so they wouldn't feel sorry for him.

The next day when he saw how well the little girls liked the candy he divided his piece between them, too.

LAURA LEWISON.

(A good story.)

Dear Miss Burton:

As our topic for this week is "Unselfishness," I will write what I can. We should try and share our things with others and make them happy. In some places when children are selfish they make others unhappy as well as themselves. My sister and myself always share our things with each other. No matter how small a thing it is it is always divided between each other. I will close for this time.

Your loving Junior,

IDA KOBELITZ.

320 North Sixth street. Age 11.

(This is the right idea, Ida.)

My Dear Miss Burton:

I did not write last week for I was sick with the grip.

I will try and write something on this week's subject, "Unselfishness."

Every one of us may or in some way or other assist or instruct some of his fellow creatures, for the best of the human race is poor and needy and all have a mutual dependence on one another. There is no one that cannot do some good, and everybody is bound to do all the good they can.

Every Junior can do something. Every Junior can set a good example, be it many or few. Every Junior has some one or other whom they can advise or instruct or in some way help to guide through life.

One drop of water helps to swell the ocean. A spark of fire helps to give light to the world. We are small Juniors passing amid the crowd; we are hardly noticed; but we each have a spark within us that may be felt through eternity if exercised for good.

Hoping that these few suggestions may help some Junior to greater activity in being unselfish, I am,

Yours,

FRANCES LYONS.

Age 12 years.

A VERY NICE LETTER

Dear Miss Burton:

I will write a few lines on the topic "Books I Love."

I love to read books after I learn my lessons at school. A few good books I have read are "The Adventures of a Whaler on Land and Sea," "The Story of Betty," "The Little Pepper Series," and "Donald and Dorothy."

The first mentioned is the best one I have read.

We have quite a few books in our library at school and I have read about half of them. I will be lone some for some of our books when vacation comes.

This is all I can write on the subject for now.

Your Loving Junior,

VERNICE PAQUETTE.

French Island. Age 11 years.

P. S.—Yes, I think a matinee party would be nice.

Dear Miss Burton:

As the subject is about "Unselfishness" I will write on it.

Every one should be unselfish to their brothers and sisters and everybody else.

To be unselfish we should be willing to share with others and not envy any one that has anything better than we.

Here is a story what I would call unselfishness.

"THE POT OF GOLD."

Once there was a merchant who had a farm that he wanted to sell to another man.

So this man bought it from the merchant.

One day when he was plowing in his field he found a pot of gold. He then took it to the merchant and he wanted him to take it, that it belonged to the one whose farm it was on.

But the farmer would not take it.

So they took it to the king for him to decide whose it was.

When they got there the king asked the farmer if he had a daughter, and he said yes, and the merchant had a son, so the son and daughter of these men were married and they received the gold.

I will close for this time.

Your loving Junior,

VERNICE PARQUETTE.

Age 11 years.

P. S.—I received the postal on Thursday night, but I thought it was too late to send a letter Friday, so I will write on the topic for last week and send it now.

(That is alright, Vernice, and this is a very nice story.)

My Dear Miss Burton:

I don't know what the subject is for this week. I haven't written for a long time, but I will try now to write a letter every week. I go to school every week. I am in the 3B grade, and my brother is in the 2B grade. He is 8 years old. I will close for tonight, so good-bye.

From,

EVA SWARTZ.

(Eva, did you read my letter carefully? If you had you would have seen what the subject was.)

Dear Miss Burton:

I'll begin to write a little note every week. As I am going to school I haven't very much time to spare this week. I have too many studies to do before Arbor day. I am a great friend of reading and writing, and the books I love to read are: "The Five Little Peppers" and "Beautiful Joe," and "The Lonely Friend."

As this is all I can think of, I remain,

MADELINE HUBER.

(We are glad to hear from you, Madeline, and next time may be you can write on the subject.)

"UNSELFISHNESS"

Dear Miss Burton:

As I saw the topic this week is to be "Unselfishness" I will write.

Once a boy was going to school and he had an orange. When he was on his way to school he met a poor boy. This poor boy told the other boy he was hungry. The other boy gave him his orange because he knew that he was awful hungry. I think this is unselfishness.

From your loving Junior,

ESTHER NOEM.

1711 Charles street. Age 10 years.

(P. S.—I would much rather have a picnic than a matinee party.)

Dear Miss Burton:

It is now sometime since I have had a chance to write a letter to the Juniors.

I think our topic for this week is a good one as we can all be unselfish especially in our play. We can do as our playmates wish and not try to have our own way, and we can keep from saying unkind things, even when we feel that we have a right to say them. I will send a story about a little boy's unselfishness.

With love to all the Juniors, I am

Your friend,

LAURA LEWISON.

Lansing, Ia., May 6, 1908.

Dear Miss Burton:

As our topic for this week is "Unselfishness," I will write what I know about unselfishness. We all ought to try and not be selfish. When some children are selfish they make themselves as well as the others unhappy. My brother and I always share with each other.

Wishing the Junior page success I remain as ever,

Your loving Junior,

HENRIETTA G. ZEIN.

Age 12 years.

JUNIOR STORY

REAL FOLKS IN FICTION.

(Here is a little review, Juniors, of "Little Women," the book that I noticed by your letters you all love so well.)

• • • The dearest girls in the world, are Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy. They have already been through three generations of young folks and bid fair to go on doing it to the end of time. Too many books for girls are anemic; "Little Women" throbs with red blood. It is made up of real people. Father and mother March with their quartet of girls lived, in essentials, as here described. I doubt if another story book contains so many actual happenings as in that little cosmos, a happy home. Mr. Lawrence, the gruff old neighbor, with the meaty heart as well as the prick of the chestnut burr, was Miss Alcott's grandfather, and Laurie, the "glorious human boy" who has captured a million girls, shaped their ideals of manhood, and caused their tongues to wag, "O why didn't Jo marry him!" was claimed by many a contemporary youth's dotting parents. Some observers saw a likeness to Julian Hawthorne. Miss Alcott's own testimony is that he was sketched from a Polish boy met in her travels. She did not claim for him the verisimilitude attaching to the little women.

There were actually Bronson Alcott's four daughters, who, until one of them coined her genius, were poor gentlefolks, "with parents 'unworldly as a pair of babies,' but possessed of a philosopher's stone that transmuted poverty into blessing."

Now, this is not a preachy book, or natural girls the world over would not like it; for in one respect they are all like Marmee's children, who "objected to taking advice as they did salts and senna."

The Alcott-March way of instilling truth was ingeniously indirect; when scarcely out of babyhood, the little ones played "Pilgrim's Progress," with mother's pie-bags on their backs, staffs in hand, journeying from cellar to house-top to escape from the City of Destruction. Logically, there came a time in girlhood, when the play turned to earnest—was leavened with real piety. Even Laurie came under the spell of the allegory when he caught the four girls with the large flapping hats, brown linen pouches, and long sticks, climbing a real hill to a delectable mountain summit, where a Celestial City lifted its spires in the sunset glory. Even Laurie.

"A creature not too bright or good. For human nature's daily food," exclaimed, "If I arrive late, you'll say a good word for me, won't you, Beth?"

The death of this sweet shy sister is one of the real incidents of the book, and to my mind is worth a hundred inventions. Meg's charming love affair and happy marriage to Jim Brooke—himself an entity—the inimitable twin, Demi, and the accessories of that fireside, are real, as every pilgrim to our Concord Mecca knows. Perhaps the most delicious draught from the Demi-John is the passage with his grandfather. After a Socratic dialog, sparkling with absurdities, the sage winds up with the question, "Now, Demi, tell me where you keep your mind."

If the boy had replied, like Alcibiades, "By the gods, Socrates, I cannot tell," his grandfather would not have been surprised; but when, after standing a moment on one leg like a meditative stork, he answered, in a tone of calm conviction, "In my little belly," the old gentleman could only join in grandma's laugh and dismiss the class in metaphysics.

But it is Jo, comical, delightful, lovable Jo, with her "gentlemanly demeanor" on or off, as the case may be, her tousled hair, ink-stained fingers and tragic eye, that all girls adore. Whether as Augustus Snodgrass she is doing the high literary part for the Pickwick club; or as Hugo, the villain, in her own tragedy, dying the death before the dress-circle gathered genteely on the cotbed, Jo is for all time the girl of girls to me.

Her literary career, as depicted in the book, is one of the real things owned up to by Miss Alcott: "Every few weeks she would shut herself up in her room, put on the scribbling suit and 'fall into the vortex,' as she expressed it."

Her "scribbling suit" consisted of a black woolen pin-afore on which she could wipe her pen at will, and a cap of the same material, adorned with a cheerful red bow, into which she bundled her hair when the decks were cleared for action. The cap was a beacon to the inquiring eyes of her family who during these periods kept their distance, merely popping in their heads semi-occasionally to ask with interest, "Does genius burn, Jo?" . . . The divine afflatus usually lasted a week or two, and then she emerged from her "vortex," hungry, sleepy, cross, or despondent.

It was after one of these attacks that Jo incidentally came upon an offer of a hundred-dollar prize for a sensational story; tried for it, and won. The story was rubbish—none knew that better than Jo—but it brought comforts for them all, as did other ventures. "The Duke's Daughter" paid the butcher's bill, "A Phantom Hand" put down a new carpet, and the "Curse of the Coventry" proved the blessing of the Marches in the way of groceries and gowns."

THE GAY BABOON'S CHRISTMAS EVE

Now Miss Mehitable Huldy Smith saw that it was snowing. And she was very glad, for it was the night before Christmas. So she stirred the fire on the hearth. She laid down two birch sticks on it, and then two more on top of them, and then one more on top of all; and then she took down the little red bellows from the mantle.

The baboon was watching with all his eyes, for he had just felt a chill in his fuzzy left ear, and was afraid of another.

Miss Mehitable Huldy Smith blew on the coals with the little red bellows, and the little red bellows said, "Whee-hee-whee-hee-whee-hee." The coals glowed and the new sticks sputtered and golden flames danced all over the hearth.

And the gay baboon laughed up his sleeve.

Then Miss Mehitable Huldy Smith put away the bellows and went out into the kitchen.

When she went out the baboon slipped out of the rocker by the book-case, and walloped over the fire to toast his fuzzy left ear that had had a chill. And then for a long, long time he looked right into the fire, and thought and thought. The fire made little fires in the baboon's eyes, but he didn't know it.

By and by Miss Mehitable Huldy Smith came back into the parlor, and looked at the baboon. And the baboon knew that it was time to go to bed. But somehow he didn't feel a bit sleepy; so he kept on watching the fire. And Miss Mehitable Huldy Smith went into the bedroom, and put on her nightcap, and went to sleep as quick as a wink.

And the house was as still as still could be. Only the birch sticks sputtered, sending out dancing flames all over the hearth. The gay baboon liked it so he laughed up his sleeve.

By and by he heard sleighbells tinkling, tinkling, all very merry in the snowy air of the night before Christmas. But after a while the tinkling, tinkling, didn't sound any more, and the baboon knew that it was growing very late indeed, and that all the good people were sound asleep, like Miss Mehitable Huldy Smith, in their little whitecaps.

Then all of a sudden the gay baboon jumped up from before the fire—and laughed up his sleeve, and then laughed up his other sleeve. Then he walloped out of the parlor into the hall, and over to the front stairs. Up the stairs it was all dark and still, and the baboon listened.

"B-r-r-r-r. Pst! Pst!" called he.

Then he walloped out of the kitchen, en into the back hall to the woodshed stairs. Up the stairs it was all dark and still, and the baboon listened.

"B-r-r-r-r. Pst! Pst!" called he.

And then he walloped out of the back hall into the kitchen, and out of the kitchen into the dining room, and then into the hall and right in to the parlor once more. There he sat down by the fire, where golden flames were still dancing on the hearth.

And pretty soon the baboon heard something.

A little thump, thump, thump on the front stairs; a little thump, thump, thump on the back stairs and a thump, thump, thump on the woodshed stairs. By and by the thumping grew a little clearer and a little clearer, although it was still a very little thump.

And the gay baboon laughed up his sleeve, for he knew that the little mice all over the house and in the woodshed were coming down stairs, and that their little gray tails came

Mr. Clint G. Ford who has been identified with the very foremost dramatic attractions, including Gillet's "Secret Service Co.," "David Harum," "The Clansman," etc., has this to say of Newbro's Herpicide:

"For years I was annoyed with dandruff and itching of the scalp, all due to my twenty years of theatrical life with its incumbent 'make-up' and wig wearing. At times the itching of the scalp was intense. All remedies failed me until I tried Herpicide, and I soon found that it was giving wonderful results. The itching and also the dandruff, entirely ceased and my hair resumed its natural life and vigor.

There is no question in my mind about the reality of the dandruff germ, and I unhesitatingly recommend Herpicide to my friends in the profession."

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Extravagant claims for toilet remedies do not influence theatrical people, because long experience enables them to discriminate intelligently. They demand merit and will rarely use a preparation that is not actually worth as much or more than it costs in dollars and cents. Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and by actual test does more good than all other hair remedies combined. This accounts for its popularity in theatrical circles.

"Queen Roselle" writes of Newbro's Herpicide

"I take pleasure in announcing the very satisfactory results I have had from the use of Newbro's Herpicide. My hair was falling out so rapidly that I was afraid I would lose it all. A friend advised Herpicide, and after using it faithfully my hair stopped falling out, the dandruff disappeared and my hair is now very soft and glossy.

I would like to see every lady of the profession try Herpicide, for I am confident that they would be delighted with it."

dark and still, and the baboon listened.

"B-r-r-r-r. Pst! Pst!" called he.

Then he walloped out of the kitchen, en into the back hall to the woodshed stairs. Up the stairs it was all dark and still, and the baboon listened.

"B-r-r-r-r. Pst! Pst!" called he.

And then he walloped out of the back hall into the kitchen, and out of the kitchen into the dining room, and then into the hall and right in to the parlor once more. There he sat down by the fire, where golden flames were still dancing on the hearth.

And pretty soon the baboon heard something.

A little thump, thump, thump on the front stairs; a little thump, thump, thump on the back stairs and a thump, thump, thump on the woodshed stairs. By and by the thumping grew a little clearer and a little clearer, although it was still a very little thump.

And the gay baboon laughed up his sleeve, for he knew that the little mice all over the house and in the woodshed were coming down stairs, and that their little gray tails came along behind them and made the thump, thump on the stairs.

The baboon heard something else, as the little mice came nearer and nearer.

"Squeee, squeee!" they whispered. "Christmas Eve! Christmas Eve!"

And then they all trooped into the parlor. My, such numbers as there were. They made three long lines as they came in, all very lively little mice and whispering to each other very fast.

"B-r-r-r-r. Pst! Pst!" said the baboon, and they sat down before the fire. Golden flames were dancing all over the hearth just to please the little mice on Christmas Eve.

And the little mice watched and whispered softly, and were as warm as toast.

Then the baboon reached and took down his bright green carpetbag that hung behind the door. And he put both his fore-arms 'way down into it—and something inside rattled. And he drew out both fore-leg arms, and his hands were full of sweet white pumpkin seeds. The little mice squealed right out, they were so pleased. Then the baboon put his fore-leg arms 'way down into the bright green carpet-bag again, and out came crisp little crackers, with nibbles of cheese, pie-crust flakes and all kinds of things that little mice like. My, it was the nicest party! And all the time it was Christmas Eve, and very late; and the gay baboon was laughing up his sleeve.

But pretty soon there was a sweet tinkling, tinkling, and a great stamping and a great champing outside in the snow, and the little mice were startled. And all of a sudden Miss Mehitable Huldy Smith poked her little white night-cap out of her bedroom door right into the parlor. And just at that minute Santa Claus poked his big fur cap through the front door right into the parlor. The little mice, and the baboon, and Miss Mehitable Huldy Smith and Santa Claus were all startled.

The little mice were so scared of Miss Mehitable Huldy Smith and of Santa Claus that they whisked out of the parlor into the hall, and up the front stairs and the back stairs and the woodshed stairs; and their little gray tails went along behind them.

"Squeee, squeee!" they cried. "Santa Claus! Santa Claus!"

And Miss Mehitable Huldy Smith was so startled by Santa Claus, and so frightened by the mice, that she ran back to bed, and drew the blankets 'way up over her little white night-cap.

And Santa Claus was so surprised that he jumped into his sleigh and went tinkling, tinkling away, without leaving a single present or even wishing a "Merry Christmas!"

And the baboon was left alone. So he laughed up his sleeve, and fell asleep by the fire.

And that's all for now about the gay baboon.—Little Folks.

MY KNIFE AND FORK AND SPOON

My knife and fork and spoon

Are little workmen three,

Who morning, afternoon,

And evening work for me.

Each evening of my life,

My marmalade is spread;

It is my little knife

That puts it on my bread.

How could I eat milk toast

Without my little spoon,

Or taste the great big fork,

Without my big, at noon?

My knife and fork and spoon

Are little workmen three,

Who morning, afternoon,

And evening work for me.

IRENE DOLPH GETS EIGHT YEAR TERM

SEVENTEEN-YEAR-OLD WIDOW MUST GO TO PRISON

MANSLAUGHTER THE CHARGE

Clinton Girl's Pitiful Life Story Moves Jury to a Lenient Verdict

CLINTON, Iowa, May 9.—Irene Dolph the seventeen-year-old girl-wife who was convicted of manslaughter for the killing of her husband, was yesterday sentenced to 8 years in prison for her crime, which was one of the most unusual in the police records of Iowa.

Fred Dolph, the victim, was murdered in his cottage several days before March 1. On that date the police of Clinton were notified by an attorney that they might find a dead man in the Dolph home. On investigation the police found the body of Dolph, several days dead, and the implements of murder near by.

The girl-wife's life has been a pitiful one. In the trial it was shown that her mother was an epileptic and that she also suffered from the same affliction and was weak mentally. She was reared amid wretched influences and early brought into touch with immoral ways. She was married to Dolph several years ago, while a mere child, and their married career was unhappy.

Several days preceding the killing of the husband the two quarreled during a party in the Dolph home. Dolph then threatened to leave his wife, and she declared that she would follow him and kill him if he did. Circumstances indicate that the killing was accomplished the night following.

While the evidence left no question of Mrs. Dolph's guilt, the jurors took her position that she was not altogether responsible and their verdict was as lenient as it could possibly be.

CHICAGO.—Active demand for the few lots of beef steers offered effected a clearance in first rounds yesterday. Some sales of light steers looked a little higher than the day before, while bulk were fully up to the Thursday range. A very meager supply of feeders and stock steers was in the yards, but there were also slim orders and trade had weak tone at the late decline. Prices have dropped 20 to 30c this week in the trade for plain and medium to pretty good stockers and feeders, while the market for good to choice grades is also on a lower basis than a week ago.

Calves. Stronger prices were paid for vealers. There was brisk demand for the small receipts and sales were a little higher than Tuesday on a strong basis compared with the close a week ago. Choice calves sold at $5.75 to $5.85 and a few odd lots of fancy grades up to $6.00 to $6.25.

Hogs. There was another big run of hogs throughout the west and east yesterday, the combined total at eleven markets being 100,500, or $1,300 more than a week ago and 50,200 more than two years ago, when only 50,300 were received.

LONG LEGAL FIGHT IS WON BY SCHULTZ MILLIONS SAVED BY BLACK PAPER

SUPREME COURT SAYS HE CAN NOT BE TRIED MANUFACTURERS SAY PLAN SHOULD BE CONSIDERED

HE WAS IN JEOPARDY ONCE IS PROTECTION FOR FORESTS

On a Motion from Schultz the Case Was Regarded by Court and He Was Set Free Can Use Any Kink of Soft Wood in Place of Hemlock and Others, Says P. R. Thom, Appleton

MADISON, Wis., May 9.—The supreme court handed down a decision holding that Frank F. Schultz of Milwaukee, who was indicted and convicted of having unlawfully extorted money from Edward F. Strauss, can not be tried on the indictment, having once been placed in jeopardy of punishment for the offense, and ordering his discharge. The decision modifies one handed down in the same case last January, when the judgment of the lower court was reversed and the case sent back to the lower court for "further proceedings according to law." On motion of Schultz the case was regarded in the supreme court, with the result that the defendant goes entirely free.

The substance of the decision today is that Schultz has been once placed in jeopardy of punishment for the offense charged in the indictment and cannot be put in jeopardy a second time for the same offense.

Indicted Two Years Ago
Schultz was indicted about two years ago of unlawfully extorting $50 from Edward F. Strauss, a member of the county board, by threatening to publish in a newspaper on which he worked as a reporter an expose of Strauss' bribery acts, especially in connection with the awarding of county contracts to Allen's cornice and corrugating works. The indictment particularly charged Schultz with having threatened to accuse Strauss of the crime of bribery and of threatening to ruin his business as a restaurant and saloon keeper. At the trial the judge took from the jury the question of maliciously threatening to accuse Strauss of a crime or offense, and the jury thereafter found the defendant guilty of the remainder of the offense charged in the indictment. Schultz was then sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and costs or to serve one year in the house of correction. He appealed to the supreme court, which last January reversed the judgment on the ground that there was no evidence to sustain the conviction. Then the district attorney asked for a rehearing of the case in the supreme court and the result is that the state is knocked out entirely, the decision this time being unqualifiedly in favor of Schultz.

Use of Black Paper Instead of White
The use of black paper instead of white for newspapers is an assured success as far as the paper manufacturers are concerned, but of course I am unable to speak for the success of the plan as far as newspaper men and printers are concerned, for I do not know how the latter would regard the use of white instead of black ink. There is more than passing merit in the idea and I know that if the manufacturers and publishers could work in concert in this matter it would result in the saving of millions of dollars.

The Use of Black Instead of White Paper
The use of black instead of white paper would cut down at least 50 per cent of the present consumption of pulp wood, inasmuch as old newspapers could be used in making the stock for new newspapers. Old newspapers are used now to a certain extent in the manufacture of board and wrapping papers, but they can not be used in the manufacture of white print paper for the reason that the ink can not be sufficiently bleached out to leave a sheet white enough so as to make black letters easily discernable. On the other hand, there would not be the slightest difficulty in dying paper black, no matter what color ink had been used on it. Black paper could be made of the cheapest of fibrous woods and of old paper and the sheet produced would be fully as substantial and of as high quality as the present white paper used in newspapers.

THE INDIAN'S SOUL IS SIMPLE

APPLETON, Wis., May 9.—The Indian soul is a simple one. Attorneys recognize this and although in the usual run of cases it is objectionable to ask leading questions of witnesses this practice is generally followed with Indian witnesses. And it is rare that an Indian, if he can answer a question by "yes" or "no," will add any further data or venture any information on his own behalf.

While a hearing was in session to determine the heirs in the estate of Nelson Nynham, an Oneida Indian, his children, who were put on the stand answered "yes" and "no" to questions and although they knew they had another sister the attorneys did not think to ask them if such were the case and they were made the legal heirs and judgment was closed in the estate March 21, 1905. This is the simple soul of the Indian, or so Opelia, Sophia and Benjamin Webster would have it when questioned in county court as to why they had not told of this other sister who is an equal heir with themselves in the estate.

Electra Smith or Skenadore, as her name is by marriage, presented a petition to the court to reopen the judgment and she was made an equal heir with the others named.

When at Heafford Junction a change of cars had to be made and the prisoner seeing an opportunity, dashed away from Sheriff Bartelme and ran into the woods. The officers fired several shots at Phillips, but failed to hit him and the escaping prisoner was soon lost to sight in the underbrush.

DEMAREST GETS BULK OF PRIZES
NEW YORK, May 9.—Thirty-eight persons attended the banquet at the Liederkranz club, given to the five amateur billiard players who took part in the recent international 13.2 balk line tournament held under the auspices of that organization. Oscar Seltz presided. One of the features was the presentation of prizes.

Calvin Demarest of Chicago took the bulk of the trophies. Besides winning the tournament, he made the highest single run, the best single average and the best grand average. He received the international cup presented for competition by William H. Lenke and also two pearl and diamond rings.

Lucien Revolle of France, who finished second in the tournament, received a gold watch with a diamond fob. In responding he spoke in French with Alfred Cubler as the interpreter. Mr. Revolle says that billiard conditions in America are much superior to those in France. He hoped to come here to compete again next year and to bring along one or two other French experts.

C. F. Conklin of Chicago, E. W. Gardner of Passaic, and J. E. Poggenburg of this city, other contestants in the recent tourney, each received a prize.

A popular test for Gasoline cars is to seal in the high speed lever and drive the car over a hilly course, one where a great variation in speed is made necessary by road conditions.

No severer test has ever been imposed upon any car than that through which the OLDSMOBILE Roadster came with flying colors at Seattle, Washington, April 14th, making a 1000 mile non-stop run and climbing Queen Anne Counterbalance without once shifting a gear.

We are ready to prove that the OLDSMOBILES Model M. has no peer at the price, $2750.00. You may be honestly of the opinion that some cars listing at the same price, but selling at various discounts are equal to the OLDSMOBILE, but if you will give us the opportunity we will show you the difference and why some cars can be bought at so called confidential prices.
